Published by students of New Trier Township High School,

I expect to pass through this world but once; any good thing, therefore, that I can do, or any kindness that I can show to my fellow creatures, let me do it now; let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again.

THE TWAIN SHALL MEET

THE COUNCILS DECIDED TO REMAIN
AUTONOMOUS _ BUT THEY DID PLAN TO WORK TOGETHER ON A COOPERATIVE PROJECT
SEMESTERLY

"A year of decision, a year of division." So Council, as all the other organizations, was faced with the problem of instituting a counterpart in the new school. But equally as important was curbing certain problems on the east campus. While searching for solutions for these problems, Student Council initiated new programs for the student's benefit.

One of the most important problems which required immediate attention was the first period situation. Overcrowded conditions made it impossible for all the students without a first period class to meet in the halls or first floor rotunda. Council provided a solution which was not to be interpreted as a disciplinary action, but as a service to the students. The lunch hall was opened and provided a place for students to talk and eat breakfast. Study halls were supervised, and provided students with a place to study if they so wished. The Head of First Period (first semester), and the Head of Recreation were the general supervisors for all the first period operations.

The inability of a few students to "accept the responsibilities that go along with the privileges of self-government" has been a constant problem to council-regulated operations. Frequent disturbances in various study halls, and infrequent but serious riots in the lunch hall eventually caused a meeting to be called of the heads of all the major organizations. Pete Rossiter presided at the meeting, which was not intended to find a solution to these problems, but merely to bring them out into the open.

Student Teaching Week was initiated by Bill Bronner and Lexi Panos, and afforded interested students an opportunity to teach a class. This program was very successful, and achieved its purpose in that students were able to gain teaching experience.

A new board position was created by the addition of a co-head of Unity and Spirit. These co-heads provided a liaison between Pep Club, Council, and the students. Unity was needed, not only within the school, but between the East and West campuses as well. This attempt for unity was achieved by passing the East-West Unity bill. This bill provided for joint meetings of the student cabinets of both schools once a month.

Student Council achieved the goals it attempted. It made the students aware of their responsibilities to the school, and more important, to themselves. The board has become more vitally involved in Council affairs by enlarging their committees and staffs, thus enabling closer contact with the entire student body. The vitality and initiative shown by the new officers and board during their first semester in office prophesied the merit of the ideas to come in the future.

PEP CLUB

BOARD—FIRST ROW: Miliken, Schulman, Swoger, Granum, B. Milwid. SECOND: Blumberg, Dwyer, C. Milwid, Oliver. THIRD: Woloshin, Paine. Denis. REAR: Mrs. Hoehn. (Cherpak)

The Pep Club Constitution states that the organization is to be for all girls, and its purpose is in prompting spirit and support for the various teams. But these criteria were very wide, and often in the past the Club was a closed "group," building up neither the necessary enthusiasm nor the active membership among girls.

And so the 1965 Pep Club board, headed by Cam Milwid, struck out to revitalize their attitudes. Membership was opened in September and 900 girls joined. But to insure their active participation, rather than the apathy of past years, the board held more meetings. At these, the principles of the various sports were presented to make the girls more aware of what they were attending; this was done, as well as creating a desire to attend the club, by having skits, cheers, and projects such as the second annual foot ball and the "stamp out" program.

But there was more to making Pep Club an effective spirit raiser at the games than these meetings. Many innovations were attempted, among them the now-famed Green Derby, introduced to unite the school behind a visible symbol; and a co-head of Unity and Spirit worked with the board, giving the Pep Club a direct and necessary communication with the whole school.

But President Milwid didn't stop at this. For the first time in its history, Pep Club held open elections to determine next year's board; this created the feeling through the year that each girl was a vital unit to the whole school and made elections a real indication of accomplishment. Thus, 1965 was perhaps the club's best, as it made its consititution a living, accomplished goal, rather than a filed-away, dusty one.

"LES GIRLS"

INCREASED PARICIPATION MEANT MORE IDEAS, MORE BOOKS, A BETTER CLUB, A BETTER SCHOOL.

Sparked by fresh ideas, the 1964-65 Girls' Club pursued its tradition of service while offering its members greater opportunities for participation.

Faced with the prospect of a still-larger membership, the board worked to bring all interested girls closer to their organization. The weekly rep meetings were opened to all girls, who could freely express their opinions on the club's plans. To further such participation, a suggestion box was placed in the office and the board conducted several meetings after school. Finally, the system for choosing girls to serve on committees was thoroughly revised so that those who had consistently shown interest would be chosen.

Changes were also apparent in the charity drives. At Girls' Club's suggestion, the fall charity drive collected books rather than canned foods. Despite bitter cold weather, the drive surpassed its goal and gave over sixty-seven thousand books to charitable organizations for use in southern schools. The magazine drive succeeded in raising forty-two thousand dollars for Girls' Club scholarships.

New thought was also given to service and project activities. Girls continued to render valuable service to the school through the library and office staffs, and to the community through the advisor room Christmas projects and other volunteer work. The paperback bookstore continued operation on an enlarged basis. Another innovation, the Tri-Ship — Girls' Club Social Service Project, enlisted girls' aid at Cook County Hospital.

Revision and careful planning were evident in the year's social events. In the Fall freshmen and seniors converged at "Pooh Corner" and new girls were welcomed at a dinner. After the annual debate on the merits of Friendly Week, the board decided on a new format for "Friendly Bee". Girls were not asked to buzz around the school to win friends for one week, but instead, to consider what the spirit of friendliness should be. Later in the winter Daddies and daughters went Parisian at the successful "A Peach of a Père." The Girls' Club social year raced to its conclusion with the spring fashion show, "Hialeah Heyday."

Two elections were held during the year to choose officers who would continue Girls' Club's excellence in service and sociability at both schools.

EXPECTATIONS PLUS

A DEDICATED BOARD TACKLED WORTHWHILE PROJECTS AND EMERGED SATISFIED AND SUCCESSFUL

Fellowship, sportsmanship, and citizenship: through the years the watchwords of Tri-Ship have become the ideals of New Trier boys. Fellowship through the high school years, sportsmanship on the playing fields, citizenship within the school government — all are gained by association with Tri-Ship. And a hard-working board and eminently capable officers made this year one of the most rewarding in Tri-Ship's long history.

Of course, the club sponsored the traditional "Tri-Ships", and all the dances proved successful. An innovation was the introduction of an informal dance, "Tri-Turkey", in place of one of the traditionally semi-formal affairs. About the most publicized event of the year at New Trier was Tri-Ship's Ice Cream Social, which was postponed twice (due to dining hall conflicts) after having been announced each time. The annual Social, which was originally scheduled for the football season, was finally held after an Evanston basketball game.

The entire school was shocked early in the year at the disbanding of Traffic Squad. This group had rendered faithful service to the school for thirty-six years, efficiently directing traffic in the mornings and at all major New Trier events. The squad's actions were unfortunately found to be in violation of a state statute. However, the head of Traffic Squad, Fritz Newenhuyse, remained an active member of the Tri-Ship board.

The joint Tri-Ship and Girls' club charity drive was of a new type this year. The articles to be collected were books, goal being fifty thousand. Jim Mizell, head of charity, Fred Polito, vice-president, and their Girls' Club associates chose three recipients for the books: educational foundations in Atlanta and Berea, Kentucky, and a tutoring program in Chicago. At the drive's end 67,023 books had been collected and sent to these deserving organizations. The students had the satisfaction of collecting implements of learning to be used directly in the instruction of underprivileged youths.

Presiding over Tri-Ship's many activities was John Oros. Fred Polito, vice-president; Phil Wilhelm, secretary; and Mike Becker, treasurer, assisted him most ably.

N CLUB

N-Club is more than merely a community of athletes. It is also a service organization, and as such has one of the longest and finest records at New Trier. It is also one of the school's largest selective groups, boasting over two hundred members. All boys who have won major letters in an interscholastic sport are members of the club.

N-Club emphasizes sportsmanship and fellowship among its members. Each boy in the club is expected to refrain from smoking and drinking, under penalty of revocation of his letters. Mr. Frantzen, the sponsor, points out that the members unite not only under this code of ethics, but also for service projects such as the ushering at basketball and football games. The club sponsored a successful dance at the end of the year. N-Club, stated Frantzen, will continue to broaden its services in the future.

STUDENT TUTORS

Now in its fifth year of operation, the Student Tutoring Organization continued to serve New Trier despite a serious shortage of space for tutoring.

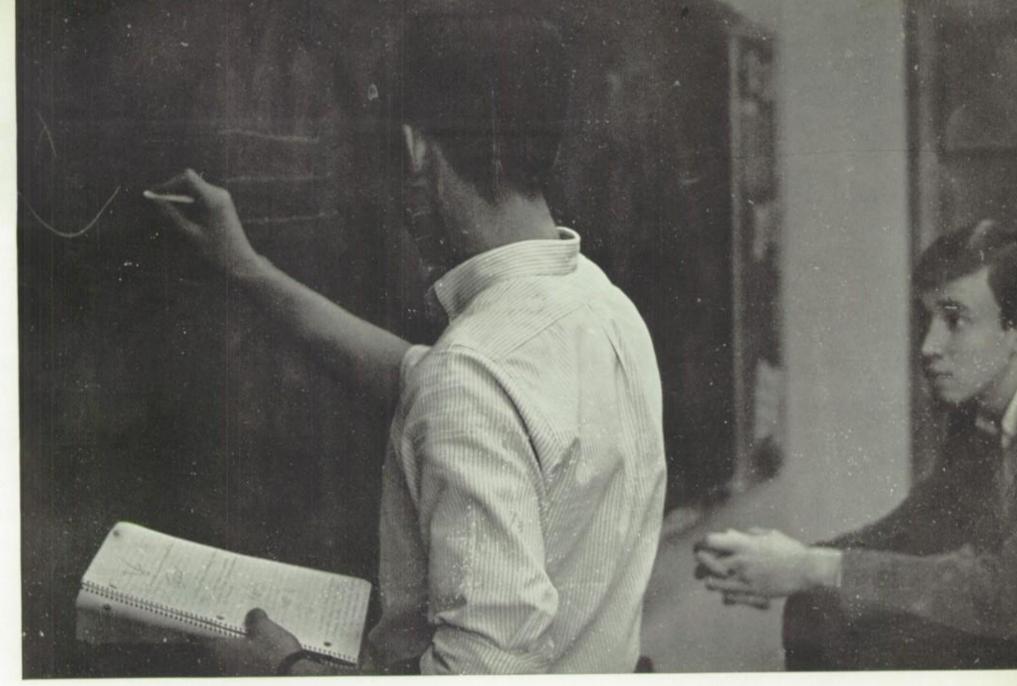

Because of over-crowded conditions, fewer tutees could be accepted to be helped by approximately 120 junior and senior tutors each semester. Often tutors and tutees were forced to work in such unlikely places as the tunnel and the rotunda. The eight senior board members carried on the organization's extensive paper work of processing the applications of both tutors and tutees. They were helped second semester by the junior board which was chosen to direct the organization for the coming year.

The Lawndale tutoring project, under the direction of Vice-President Valerie Weinhouse, was continued and expanded. Two groups of tutors traveled weekly to Mercy Center in southwest Chicago. Each student worked with one or two Negro children in the areas of reading, phonics, and mathematics. More importantly, the students became friends with their tutees, and provided them with the extra attention and friendliness often denied them in the Chicago school system.

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE

"AFS is the greatest thing that ever happened to me."
This statement by Paul Apsan, AFS'er from Brazil, summarizes the feelings of not only New Trier's four exchange students, but also, to a large extent, those of all involved with AFS students.

The American Field Service was founded in France during World War I as an ambulance service. For many years AFS has put into practice the theory that international friendships are made and strengthened on the personal level. As a result AFS sponsors a giant program of student exchange. In recent years New Trier has been fortunate in receiving four students from abroad each school year. Spending the 1964-65 year with us were Paul Aspan from Brazil, Marisol Torres from Chile, Vivianne Stucki from Switzerland, and Mike Stevens from Great Britain. The students lived the lives of New Trier seniors, residing in township homes.

In addition, two New Trierites went abroad under the program. Molly Babize lived in Pakistan during the summer and Gordon Murray resided with a French family in the Alps during the school year.

The club financed its efforts with the highly successful foreign film festival in the fall and an equally effective bottle drive. AFS sponsored the annual Weekend during which more than ninety AFS'ers from all over Illinois became acquainted with New Trier and Chicago. In short, in its many activities, AFS continued to further international and personal friendships. # N. T. GUARD

"The New Trier Guard is the most important single part of the New Trier swimming program," said Dave Robertson, head of the New Trier swimming organization. The Guard is one of the most important service organizations in the school, serving the entire township as well as the student body.

The more than ninety boys and girls in the Guard were the leaders in the township swimming program. As well as serving as leaders for their physical education classes, Guard members supervised recreational swims held in the afternoons and evenings each week, and acted as instructors during the Saturday morning teaching program. During the year, the Guard taught more than three thousand local grammar school students.

Each member of the Guard received special training in teaching techniques, special instruction in life saving and general water safety, and instruction in the basics of pool maintenance and equipment repair.

The Guard program, requiring over fifteen hours weekly, was run on a completely voluntary basis. Guard members neither expected nor received any reward other than personal satisfaction for their hours of service to the community. Leaders of the program were Woody Angst, head guard with Bob Buenger as assistant, and Tricia McArthur, girls' head guard with Cathy Sprenger, girls' assistant.

BULLETIN CORPS

Each day during tenth and eleventh periods a list of all the students absent for that day are delivered to every room and office in the school. This is one ofthe most needed services performed by students. Most people, however, do not realize how the system of Bulletin Corps functions. During all adviser periods, members of this corps collect absence slips from each room. Then tenth period about twenty members meet and assemble all of these absentees into one list. In an assembly line this list is mimeographed, put together, and stapled. Six hundred copies are then distributed by the members throughout the entire school.

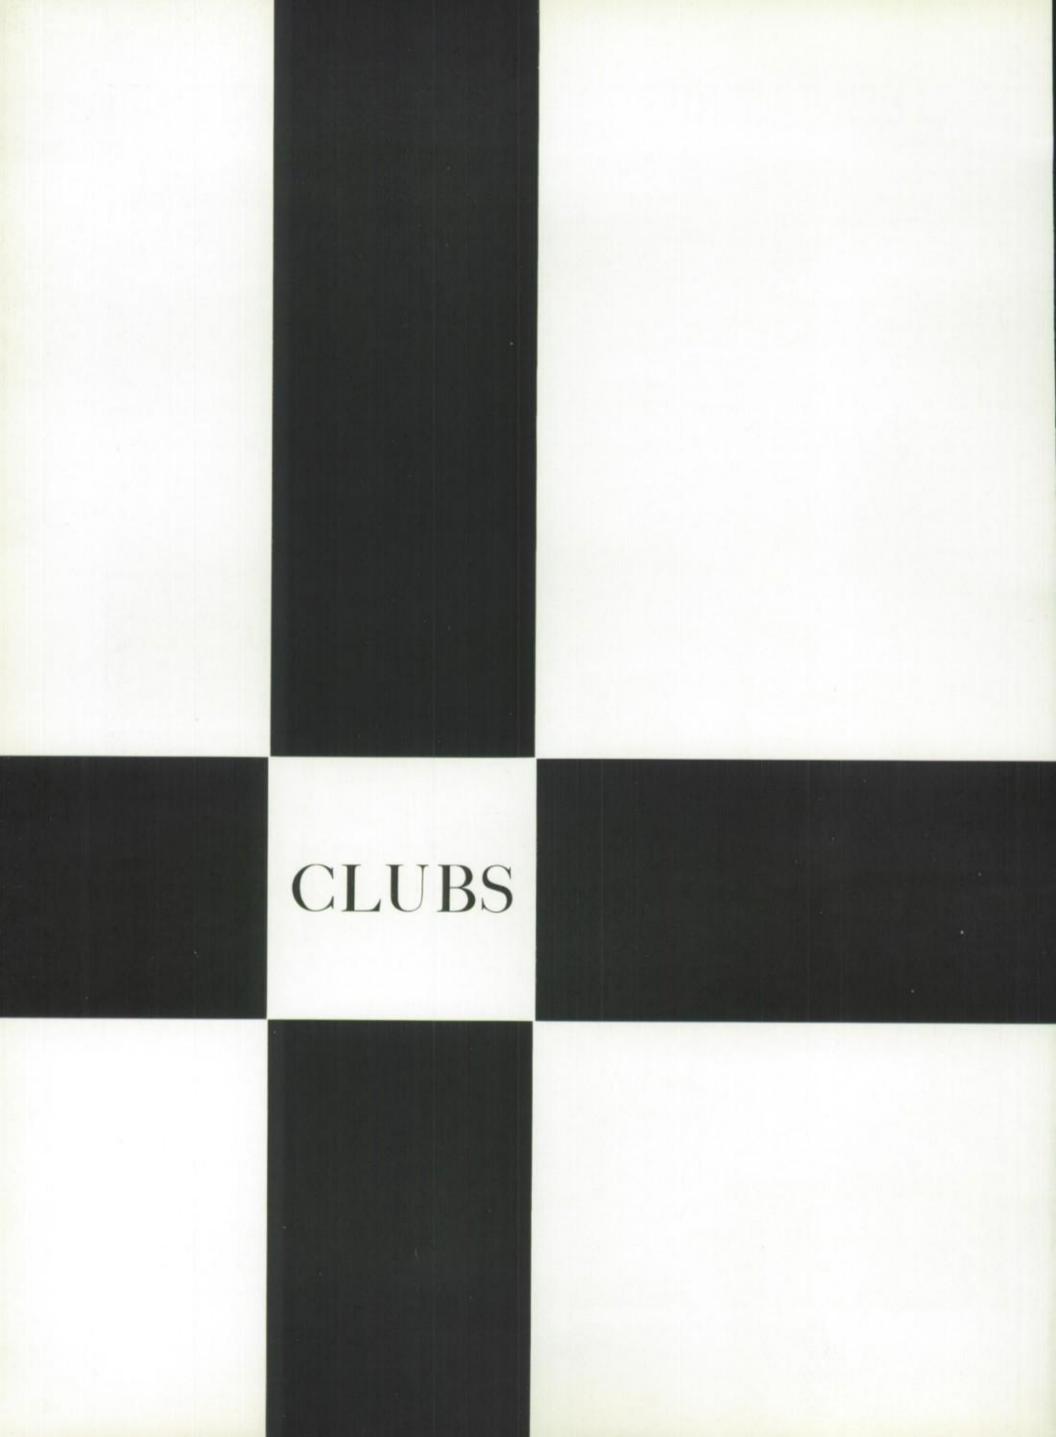

Under the supervision of Mrs. Cook, Pauline Bruno and Sally Rosenthal perform the task of compiling the daily absence bulletin. (Mui)

SERVICE CORPS

The character of Service Club is different from all other clubs: the members have a sincere desire to help other students and personnel of the school. Working as individuals, the volunteers aided Mrs. Savage and Mrs. Scheer in the Nurse's Office. Numbering six, the members were all upper classmen. "They do such things as phoning, recording data, helping people in wheelchairs, and the taking of temperatures," commented Mrs. Savage. "They were invaluable."

MATHEMATICS

The junior-senior math club, Bernoullians, met approximately twice a month, with Paul King presiding. The members heard speakers from the New Trier faculty and guest lecturers from institutions in the Chicago area. In addition, with sponsor Mr. Paumer's aid, club members presented topics and problems from their own research. These tactics, in attempting to make Bernoullians an effective club, succeeded to such an extent that, according to King, "1965 has been the most successful year in Bernoullians history."

Sophomore Math Club discussed, digested, and fully explored many of the more complex mathematical concepts not studied in the regular year. Club funds were used periodically for the purchasing of books, slide rules, and other data relevant to the subjects being discussed. Individual students investigated certain topics, then reported on them to the group. Ed Stickgold, president, said, "In this way, individuals became experts on a few specific topics, and well acquainted generally on a large number of higher mathematical principles."

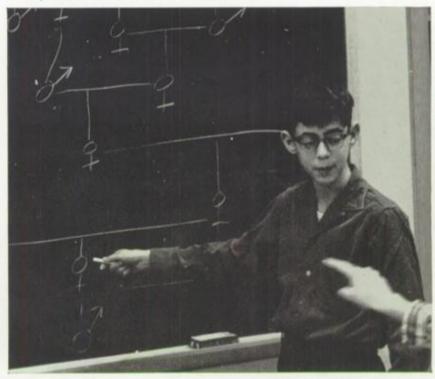

Paul King expresses a triangle's feelings on the situation with the vehemence and dictatorial expressiveness which gained him control of Bernoullians '65. (Alschuler)

"If you're symbol-minded it's easy," says Edward Stickgold, member of Sophomore Math Club. (Shoemaker)

Every second and fourth Monday, freshmen with a common interest, mathematics, met to "develop mathematical topics and recreation not usually covered in the high school curriculum. This is the purpose of Frosh Math Club, according to Mr. Tenney, faculty sponsor.

Aaron Weiss presided at the semi-weekly meetings at which Mr. Tenney introduced unusual problems for solution. Richard Evans, vice-president, Andy Hunter, head of public relations, and Steve Osborne, in charge of showing math films, kept the club running smoothly.

The subject: teaching as a career; Dale Rittenberg shows a film strip on this topic while President Joan Tauber, Cindy Stone, and Linda Sherman watch and listen at a meeting of Future Teachers of America.  $(\mathcal{M}ui)$

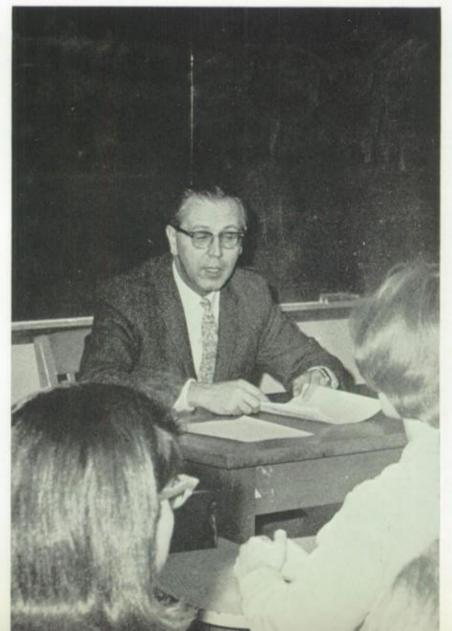

Films, visits, and lectures given by renowned physicians in the area occupied the time of the members of the Future Nurses of America and Health Careers. Monthly meetings were held in the nurses' office after school under the direction of Mrs. Savage and the officers: Bonnie Cameron, president; Laurie Drummond, secretary; Beverly Butz, treasurer; and Betsy Blackburn, program chairman. Members went on excursions to the Cook County Hospital and the Downey Psychiatric Hospital accompanied by the Aescuplapians.

CAREERS

The New Trier chapter of the Aesculapians Club was designed to stimulate those interested in various phases of the medical profession. Mr. Hoyt, the sponser, and Glenn Teton, president, arranged trips once a month to such medical centers as Cook County, Evanston, and Downey Hospitals. Club members heard lectures by Dr. Stanley Starkman, the school's psychologist and others associated with the medical profession. One of the major projects of the club was taking Christmas presents to Cook County Hospital for the children when they go to observe the function of the hospital.

Joan Tauber, president of Future Teachers of America said, "The purpose of F.T.A. is to familiarize students with the necessary background for a fundamental understanding of the career as a whole." For the first time, F.T.A. exposed its members to this necessary background by giving them the practical experience of teaching a class. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Lenard, various guests appeared at meetings to acquaint members with the profession. Dr. Starkman, the New Trier psychologist, spoke on "Psychology—Aid or Handicap to Teaching?" Members learned about another aspect of teaching by participating in the Thanksgiving Day Project, a party given by F.T.A. members for the Child Care Center in Evanston.

HOBBIES

Wall Street is just a statistic away from Mr. Hart's and Randy Garrett's attention, as they interpret the latest Dow-Jones averages at a Financial Club meeting.  $(\mathcal{M}ui)$

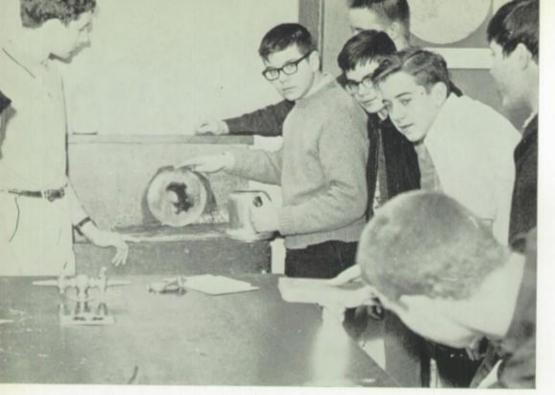

The goal of the Financial Club was to teach its members how to understand and interpret the wealth of information published about the stock market. The club events included guest lecturers representative of various industries and local brokerage firms, movies, special literature on the stock market, and a field trip to a Chicago brokerage firm and Mid-West Stock Exchange. Each member was "given" fifteen thousand dollars to invest on paper during the school year, with a prize awarded to the member who proved to be most successful in his "investements." Club President was Jeff Peterson; Vice-President, Jim Kibbey; Treasurer, Mike Levin; and Secretary, Rick Farrell. Faculty sponsor was Mr. Hart.

New this year, the Jazz Workshop was organized to provide an atmosphere conducive to the creation of good jazz, with the maximum of participation. In addition to the homegrown Dan Epstein Trio, guests included Sonny Stitt and Zoot Simms, Bob Claire, Charles Byrd, and Cannonball and Nat Adderley, each of whom discussed as well as played his music.

With this type of program, it is surprising that larger audiences were not present. However, future plans for the group included the possibility of a North Shore Jazz Festival and the continuation of guest visitors.

Making an appearance at one of the Jazz Workshops, Nat and Cannon-ball Adderly's dynamic style of playing was found to extend to a dynamic style of conversation. (Burnette)

HOBBIES

Alpha Trieri, the New Trier astronomy club, focused its sights on the most ambitious year in the club's brief history. Led by President Bob Engel and under the supervision of Mr. Musik, the club began construction of an eight-inch Newtonian telescope to be mounted on a recently-secured site at Duke Childs Field. In club meetings special reports were given by members on current topics in astronomy and the astro-space sciences. There also were several evening observation sessions. Two club members attended the Astro-Science workshop sponsored by the National Science Foundation at the Adler Planetarium.

The goal of the Bridge Club was to provide instruction and competition for players of every caliber. President Bob Ahern led, for the first time, a program of instruction in the skills of tournament bridge. The club competed in an interscholastic tournament organized this year by Mr. Bosshart, the club's faculty sponsor. The avid interest of Bridge Club members promoted Saturday evening sessions. The Wednesday afternoon meetings were filled with recreational sessions as well as interclub tournaments. Several club members competed in major tournaments in the Chicago area.

The informal Civil War Round Table was created by an enthusiastic Michael Hoffman to give New Trier a greater knowledge of the Civil War period. Prominent "amateur historians," such as Ralph Neuman and Pete Long, as well as New Trier students, gave detailed accounts of the people and events of this era. Sponser Dr. Johnston and members took two field trips; one in March to the Chicago Historical Society and the other in May to a war museum in southern Illinois.

Computer Club members relish in programming the first 15,000 prime numbers at the Illinois Institute of Technology. (D. Smith)

The Chess Club centered its activities on the teaching of beginning players. Mr. Gerol and Mr. Hart, the sponsors, together with president Gerry Keith and experienced players, helped newcomers learn the game. A large chess board was constructed for instruction and description of certain plays. Complete participation was evident in the inter-club tournaments. As various members won their games, they were moved up by notches on a competitive ladder climaxing with keen opposition in the spring.

Mr. S. I. Neiman displays the informal style of the Civil War Round Table as he lectures on Judah Benjamin. (Mui)

The Computer Club offered new and different opportunties to science-minded students. Mr. Don Smith, the sponsor, and President Pat MacCartney have taught and supervised the work of the club's members in preparation for the new 1440 computer, due to arrive here in the early summer. Each quarter the club adopted new members, teaching them the code-language called "fortran". By learning the skills involved in programming fortran, the students became better qualified to work with the new computer. If the members of the club wished to extend their skills, they were able to work at the Illinois Institute of Technology which sponsors advanced IBM programs.

The editors know you won't believe this, but this really is a live girl at a really live Model Club meeting.  $(\mathcal{M}ui)$

There are many clubs that attract little attention from the student body as a whole, but, to the members of these little-known clubs, they are rewarding and interesting. One such club is Model Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Koser and Mr. Elliott. With approximately twenty members, (only one girl), the meetings were informal but exciting. The club basically concerned itself with model cars on H.O. one-thirty-second gauge tracks. One of the activities this year was a trip to a model club in Morton Grove on May 8th. The club was well-accepted by its members according to Model clubber Ed Gregg, and, "We had a lot of fun."

HOBBIES

The New Trier Lens Club, now sponsored by Mrs. Crane, has undergone many new changes. The club's two dozen members employed their skills in the fields of light photography, double exposures, and candids. Each member was allowed to use the modern facilities both in and out of class. Most of the photographers's work, however, was directed toward the final contest which annually terminates in the spring. Mrs. Crane, who works with six or seven members in class, said that these boys gain the experience necessary to become professional photographers and to continue in the future.

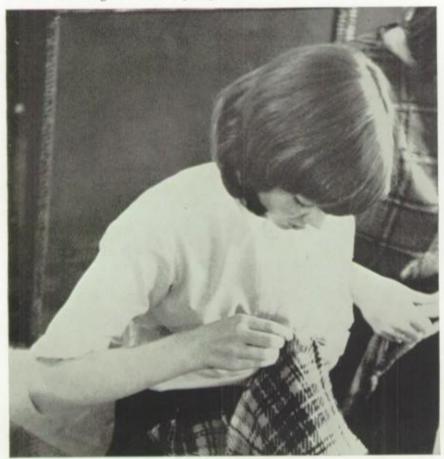

Mrs. Crane supervises the selection of Lens Club photos to be used in the photography section of the Student Art Show. (Gordon)

The program of Radio Club was planned with three main purposes: to instruct its members in the principles and practices of modern communications, to stimulate interest in amateur radio, and to provide a place for amateurs to gather and discuss their hobby. The club operated its own radio station, W9EDC, in order to implement this program.

The Club's semi-weekly meetings were highlighted by an auction from which the proceeds were used to buy additional equipment for the club station. Among the other special events was the spring picnic planned around a "fox (hidden transmitter) hunt."

Many students have seen the sweaters, mittens, and other items created by the members of the Yarn and Thread Club on display in the rotunda. This organization provided a welcome, relaxed and fun atmosphere for anyone interested in knitting. The members received instruction and encouragement from either their sponsor, Mrs. Courtney, or from any of the officers: President Pat Pinkowski, Vice-President Laura Butler, or Secretary-Treasurer Susan Horn. All the members anxiously looked forward to the annual picnic planned for spring as an official closing of the year's activities.

The Stamp and Coin Club, under the sponsorship of Mr. Neuman, gave collectors the opportunity to meet with other enthusiasts in order to buy, sell, and trade. There were biweekly trading sessions, as well as speakers and films on collecting. Several auctions were held through which members were given a chance to acquire new items for their collections and to sell their duplicates profitably. Greg Lehne served as president of the club, Jean Kantor as stamp chairman, and Mark Field as coin chairman.

With the intent of planning a future meeting, Mr. Gregory and the Interfaith board discuss and evaluate their last panel discussion held at the Baha'i Temple. (B. Goldberg)

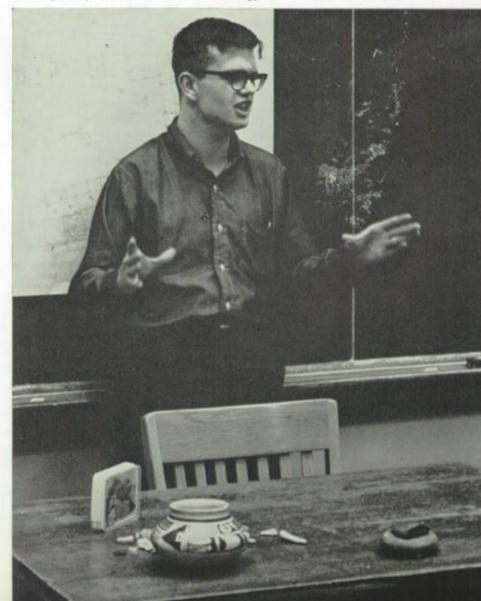

Miss Morrow described the Archaelogical Society as "A new club, feeling its way." The club offered truly interested students an opportunity to study the past through relics preserved by time. Under the leadership of President Jim Cocroft, resources of the individual members were drawn upon for readings and discussions at the meetings held once every three weeks. Two committees shared the responsibility of program-planning: the Exterior arranged digging expeditions, while the Interior was responsible for recruiting guests to speak on various archaeological topics. Featured were a lecture by Mr. Mitchell and a field trip to the Oriental Institute.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The informal organization of the Student Forum finished its third year under the sponsorship of Mr. Marran. The Forum has no officers, rather, a core of experienced members act as the directors and try to obtain films, invite speakers to come to school, and hold a discussion with the members of the forums. These discussions cover the controversial problems on contemporary subjects such as open occupancy, problems of metropolitan communities, and politics. The forum brought movies and speakers from all over the Chicago area to New Trier each month and engaged them in a brief discussion open to all students.

Interfaith is designed to give all students a chance to develop their own ideas about religion through panel discussions, guest speakers, and films. Under the leadership of President Kathy Gregory and Sponsor Mr. Gregory, Interfaith provided an atmosphere in which students could test or clarify their own beliefs. Included in their new activities were visits to other Interfaith Organizations and a theatre trip to see a production put on by various church groups.

Brian Berbach discusses Aztec Indian civilization and shows examples of its pottery to members of Archaelogy Club. (Shoemaker)

Students taking a special interest in the peopls and customs of foreign lands enjoyed a wide variety of activities in the Geography Club. As the membership was small, Sponsor Mr. H. Peterson did not require students to be taking any geography course. Members held discussions and viewed slides of Mexico and European countries at their bi-weekly meetings. On one occasion, an exchange student at Northwestern visited the club to describe his home, Scotland. The members took several field trips around Chicago, had a Christmas party, and celebrated the arrival of spring with their traditional long hike.

For a club in the throes of organizing and starting a program, the Human Relations Club proved itself exceedingly effective. Under the leadership of Bob Waldman, President, and sponsorship of Dr. Kesselheim, club members heard a number of speakers, among them Dr. Philip Hauser, who drew over one hundred students and faculty, and Rev. Bletzer, who spoke on the integration crisis in Deerfield.

The club also sponsored a week-long visit in late April, when city teenagers and their hosts were given a glimpse of each other's worlds. The purpose of this venture was to open areas of communication, an experiment in human relations.

LANGUAGES

Although the main purpose of French Club is to provide students with the opportunity to employ their French outside of class, the benefits of the club are by no means purely academic. A wide variety of activities gave students a chance to display their talents in French as well as other fields. The annual Christmas party featured a pantomime guessing game in which members acted out scenes from French literature. The club also presented a comic play in the spring and maintained its annual Halloween booth. The highlight of the club's activities was a trip to a French puppet show and luncheon.

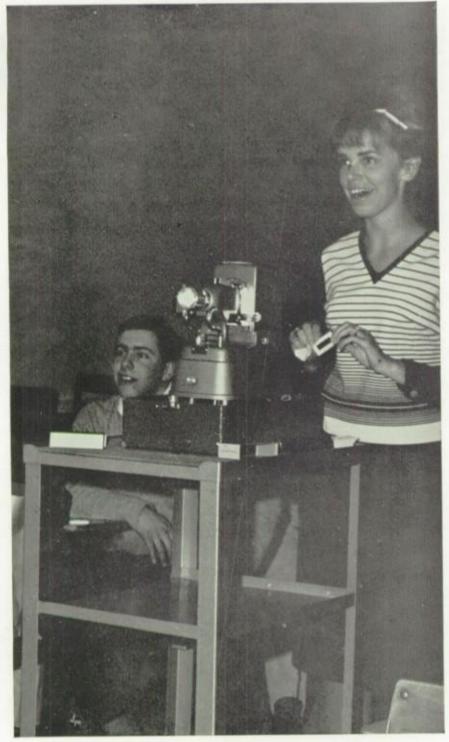

The German Club combined games, movies, and a Hallo-we'en booth for a very successful year. Under the direction of President Mike Hughey, Program Chairman Edie Anderson, and Secretary-Treasurer Anita Rosario, the club used its funds which they received for the purchasing of materials for the club's booth and movies and in preparation for the annual banquet. The club's thirty members are guided by Mr. Lylund who said that he is proud of the major accomplishments of the German Club and expects to increase the number of meetings per year to interest new and promising members next year.

"We have fun in the process of learning about different Spanish-speaking countries through their cultures, customs, and most important, the language," said Mrs. Nevius, sponsor of Spanish Club. Under the direction of President Norman Hoffberg, the monthly meetings featured speakers: Marisol Torres showed slides of her country, Chile, and Mrs. Nevius displayed her slides of Mexico. The ten regular members of the club also participated in a Spanish meal and other activities incorporating different aspects of the Spanish way of life.

The educational and social opportunities offered by the Latin Club attracted many new students to its monthly meetings. The club's activities were highlighted by such activities as a field trip to the Museum of Natural History, and a lecture given by Dr. Williams of England, who spoke on The Aeneid of Vergil. A large turnout at the classics banquet made it a pleasant combination of old traditions and new friends. The officers of the club, consul, Fred Manning; vice-president, Al Simon; secretary, Nancy Rubenstein; and treasurer, Mike Prussian and the sponsors Mr. Thomson and Mrs. Gwynn were classic examples of leadership.

PLAYBACK UNFOLDS

"Playback 65's title is fully indicative of its purpose," declared Editor Dave Bess. "It's a record for the years ahead, a composite of the sounds of New Trier as they were in 1965." With this objective in mind, the editors of the record struck out on a new path: to capture the "organized" sounds of the school—music concerts, meets, class parties rather than the "crowd hysteria sounds" known to past records, because these organized sounds are the ones memorable to this year.

Major organizations and Lagniappe were given greater emphasis, plus the many sports events and assemblies throughout the year. For the first time in the record's history, the Spring concert, and the One-Act student-directed plays were on the record, affording much highlight, and a unified total impression of the year's performing arts work.

But the editors of Playback had more work to do than simply putting out a record. Their main task second semester was to recruit Freshmen for Playback West. To do this, the editors held an assembly in early March calculated to arouse interest in the organization. Applications for offices were then sent out, and, to gain experience, the board and group chosen aided in producing this year's record.

To produce this record, three committees, Technical, Script, and Publicity, worked separately for the first part of the year, unifying their efforts in the spring when final production time was approaching. The Technical crew taped all major school events, script committee wrote dialogue and designed the cover, while Publicity was simultaneously printing posters, selling more records than in any past year; the result was more listeners than ever before, hearing a clear, reliable, quality record which recalled fully the special sounds of this year.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH WHO?

Despite such obstacles as the absence of their regular sponsor and a bad connection of their hot line to Moscow, the brave souls of the New Trier News valiantly fought and outmaneuvered Student Council and the Administration and published a rousing twenty-seven issues during the year.

Maintaining the glorious traditions of the News, the mass of senior editors, co-editors, assistant editors, and business, office, and reporting staff members started a few new ones. Amidst a veritable heaven for lunch-eaters and guitar-players, the News office saw a tangle of Chinese lanterns, blinking menorahs, Merry Christmas signs, five-handed bridge games, dancing to the sounds of Tom Lehrer, and refugees from the IM and Student Tutoring offices.

Between intra-office basketball games and rumbling with the Echoes office, the News did run a series on the national elections in November and helped Student Council hold a mock election. It also created much controversy over the charity drives, the rise of prices of sandwiches in the lunch hall, and a telegram to the President of the United States.

Backing up the senior editor was the Journalism 313-323 class, taught by Mr. Schweitzer. These dare-devils of journalism did the reporting for the paper and will make up next year's staff as announced at the Communications banquet in May. Further moral support was lent by News sponsor, Mr. McCarthy.

As the year closed, the News was recognized for two talents: filling up blank space at the very last minute and walking around school muttering something about, "If it was good enough for William Randolph Hearst, it's good enough for us."

CURRENT WITHOUT BEING STATIC

Despite the existence of radio personalities Bermuda Schwartz, Marvin T. Plunger, Uncle Willy, and Leonard Tilkhaus, a missing window key, and the "hex wrench scandal," student-operated FM radio station WNTH in general had a very prosperous year, celebrating its fifth anniversary on December 10th.

WNTH continued in its tradition of a large staff (more than 100 students), long broadcast hours (increased to forty-eight per week this year), and many new changes in programming and service to the public, thus qualifying for retention of its self-adopted title of the country's best high school radio station. One of the highlights of WNTH's 32-week broadcast year was its coverage of the 1964 presidential elections. Preparation began in the summer by obtaining either recorded speeches or interviews with all of the major national and local candidates. On election night, staying on the air until 12:30 A.M., WNTH presented the complete election story with national voting results from its UPI wire service and with reporters stationed in all the New Trier precincts and in both Republican and Democratic headquarters in Chicago.

Innovations this year included the fifteen published issues of the Hotz Hit Survey, listing New Trier's top twenty rock 'n' roll hits as determined by telephone resquests to the station. Throughout the year a very successful emphasis was placed on procuring interviews with people in the sports, rock 'n' roll, political, and general entertainment fields. WNTH's sports broadcasts remained high on the list of popularity, as did its new, full broadcast schedule on Saturdays.

Not wanting, however, to paint a completely rosy picture, WNTH sadly announced shortly after the second semester began that New Trier's "intramural battle of brains," "Answer Up!", was to be discontinued, after a short in one of the major components in the complex electrical scoring machine made the whole system inoperable. Nonetheless, WNTH completed its broadcast year with a feeling of having carried out quite well its philosophy of "entertainment along with education."

DISCIPLINE + PARTICIPATION = SUCCESS

The philosophy of the debate program is to "provide maximum exposure to the discipline of formal argument." All thirty-one members of the class, composed of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, were exposed to maximum participation, averaging thirty-five rounds in competition during the year.

Debate is based on competition. The varsity debate team, in competition with other schools, performed well. Debating the proposition that there should be international control of nuclear weapons, the topic for the season, the group placed second in both state debate tournaments: the National Forensic League competition and the Illinois High School Association tourney. The varsity team also won the Metropolitan Debate Union Tourney, making the victory New Trier's ninth in the last ten years.

But debate is not merely the presentation of a formal argument; it includes all facets of public speaking. Pete Rossiter was named boys' extemporaneous speaking state champion and went to the national contest held in Omaha in June. Pat Collins, the top-ranked Individual Events performer at New Trier, finished third in the Illinois High School Association state competition in verse reading. Justin Simon was first in the National Student Congress in Akron in 1964, and went again to the Nationals in 1965, joined by John Dorfman.

Mr. Boyd, coach of the debate teams, summed up the achievements of the group, "It was a year of outstanding successes."

THE READER WILL NEVER KNOW

Beethoven, Rachmaninoff, and the Kinks provided a stimulating atmosphere for the creation of Echoes 1965. Although hindered by over-enthusiastic tourists from the real world upstairs, the staff strived to superimpose its pseudo-sophistry on the student body at large.

But the year was not without innovation. The special section, reduced in length, introduced a more personal aspect of the school than had previously been shown. This year's earlier deadline for the section left the last two months free to concentrate on the meat of the book. Sketchy outlines quickly assued definite forms as the various phases of production—copy, photography, layout, subscriptions, as well as many other minute, yet inescapable, facets were correlated. At the same time, last minute changes kept everyone violently on the move, either to produce a 30-line write-up on two day notice or to demand that a request be played on the National Echoes Honorary Phonograph.

With the advent of a private darkroom, used two days a week by the News, four photographers cranked out enough proofs that only an average of 1 out of every seven photos was accepted for final use. When asked whether colored pictures would be used soon, the editors were known to wistfully reply, "Your grandchildren may see the day . . ."

In spite of the conflicts that arose, few of which remained unsolved, the staff found little difficulty in working with each other. Class distinctions were easily overcome, to the extent that a special pictures editor became the first girl sports writer in several years. To contrast the straightforward approach toward journalism and the publication demonstrated by the 20 odd members of the combined junior and senior staffs, the gnawing query was, "Where are the cookies which used to be sitting on Sponsor Mitchell's desk?"

The dash to the April 30th deadline produced varied effects on Bob Wittebort and the Head Ed. (Cherpak)

PERFORMING ARTS PROGRAM

With the conception of a dance department nine years ago, New Trier had a representative of each of the performing arts at New Trier: drama, dance, and music. But through the years they were diversified, separate units functioning independently; it wasn't until 1963, with the Performing Arts Workshop's "Allegro," that these three departments combined talents on any major scale. This production was a tremendous success, and led to the following year's "Lost in the Stars."

Such a well-coordinated efforts was put out by the various units on this musical, that the Head of the Music Department, Dr. William J. Peterman, decided to form a separate Performing Arts Division—one combining the various fields, yet separate from overseeing by any one department. Its purpose was to give experience to students in all the arts, and to show them how the performing sections depend upon each other—how acting overlaps into dance movement, dance movement into rhythm, rhythm into song, and song into acting.

In deciding the various projects to be undertaken by the section in its first year, each department head involved contributed ideas, from which came perhaps the most important programming in the Arts area of New Trier in two decades. Besides the Performing Arts' Production, "Of Thee I Sing," were lectures by various teachers on different aspects of the theatre. The electrifying Alvina Krause gave a series of talks to both the Opera Group and Acting classes, in which her famous style of speech gave students a learning experience seldom afforded at the high school level.

And Mr. Erwin Beyer gave a pantomime performance of much depth and professionalism, aiding not only dance, but also drama and voice students, in realizing the movement necessary to express an emotion well. The year's work was summed up, in essence, by the faculty's production of "John Brown's Body;" employing both speaking and singing choruses, plus acting segments, its success could only herald the fact that this new division will grow and improve through the years.

The faculty reader's theatre presentation, "John Brown's Body," was included in the new Performing Arts Division of the drama and music activities. (Mitchell)

POLITICAL, SATIRICAL RETURNS

Experimentation reared its ugly head in a variety of ways in the fall production of "Of Thee I Sing." At the same time the political climate of the George S. Kaufman-George Gershwin satire was accented by the real life politics of the Presidential election.

Once again the combination of Advanced Acting Workshop, Advanced Dance Group, Opera Group, and a selected orchestra produced a production almost professional in preparation, talent, and execution. Several innovations were evident, as this workshop resembled an Opera more than any recent workshop. An immense cast of over 175 included several actors playing roles with singing parts, while several singers held primarily acting parts. The chorus again came on stage after a year in the orchestra pit. Dancers provided transitions between scenes, including an elaborate precision drill on the Capitol steps.

The plot follows John P. Wintergreen through his campaign for the presidency, his marriage to Mary Turner, and the international complications resulting from Diana Devereaux. The complicated story line is made even more comical by the bumbling of Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom.

Technically, the show provided challenge for all crews. Stylized sets portrayed everything from dingy hotel rooms to Madison Square Garden, the Capitol, and the White House. Props had to provide, among other things, dill pickles and movie cameras. Probably the most ambitious undertaking was the first scene, played in the audience, which takes place at the convention, after Wintergreen is nominated. Spotlights, banners, posters, balloons, and singing delegates startled the audience and got "Of Thee I Sing" off to a high pitched start.

Members of the Cabinet and the entire White House staff heatedly discuss the relative merits of corn muffins and Justice in general and impeachment in particular. (B. Gordon)

BEAUTY VS. THE BEAST

The "Male Animal," presented as the winter play, was an intriguing combination of humor and satire, with an underlying theme of some significance. With the Performing Arts Workshop, the "Male Animal" completed a cycle of socio-political comment more subtle than was readily seen. The basic conflict concerns Tommy Turner's confrontation with the Board of Trustees of a midwestern college, and his subsequent refusal to back down. He is further thwarted when his wife's college sweetheart, Joe Ferguson, returns to town and charms everyone with his wit and personality.

Technically, the production was both complicated and simple. Only one set, the Turners' living room, was used throughout the three acts, but the scene was a complex and detailed one, a change from the highly stylized sets which have been used in most of the New Trier plays in recent years.

The cast, unusually small for a major New Trier production, included only 13 actors. Of these, three-fourths had never been on the stage before, a fact hard to believe because of the extremely high quality of all performances. The introduction of new talent to the New Trier stage created high expectations for coming years.

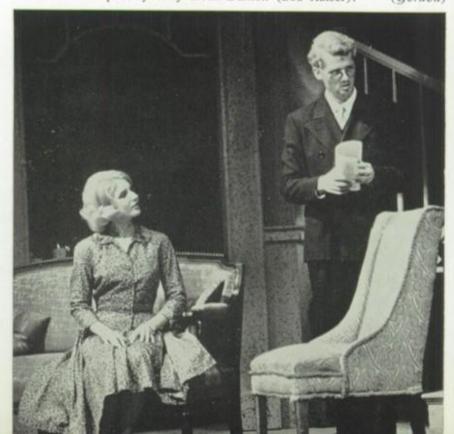

The direction of this piece fell to Mr. Leon Fougnies, a new addition to the drama department. He acquitted himself quite well in presenting a sparkling and humorous production, at the same time one with profound meaning. With the "Male Animal," the winter play was raised one more notch above being just a filler in the vacuum between the Performing Arts Workshop and the Opera.

POWER STRUGGLE

Branching away from a three-year tradition of Shakespeare plays, "The Little Foxes," a serious, realistic, period drama by Lillian Hellman, was presented as the spring production on May 14 and 15. The era depicted is the South of 1900 at the beginning of its industrialization, where forceful families were battling other clans and among themselves for control of the various rising businesses. The play centered on the particular struggles of the Hubbard family, ones especially indicative of the more brutal aspects of the time.

Three members (Ben, Oscar, and Regina Hubbard) maneuver each other and their not-so-innocent family as "Foxes" would, using any and every wily means available; and what begins in the first act as mere competition for money is by the third act a desperate struggle for absolute power. The result is theft, blackmail, murder, and an ending which "benumbs" the audience, though making them fully realize the effects of such greed as the Hubbards.

"The Little Foxes" required more of its actors than anything ever tried before at New Trier. Rehearsals concentrated on character analysis, and an attempt to develop the awareness of the actor to the situations around him; in this way, the character as an individual and as a member of this family struggle was developed.

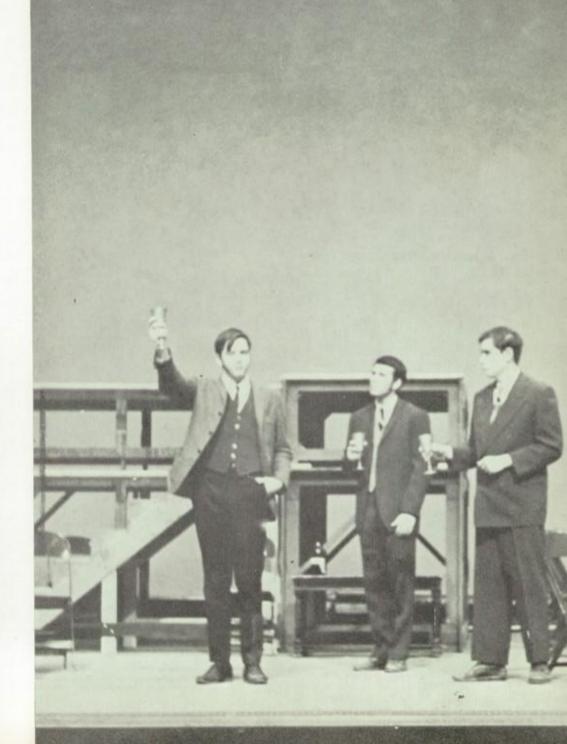

But more than being a difficult acting medium, the play was technically quite a challenge. A one-set production, it nevertheless had to be designed according to the period, thus requiring special architecture and a decorum pronouncedly Victorian. "But at the same time, we wanted this to look like Regina's taste," pointed out Technical Head Mrs. Gill, "and so our job was further complicated. This made 'The Little Foxes' indeed the most professional thing we've ever attempted-and hopefully achieved."

CINEMATICALLY SOUND

When not involved with such weighty questions as whether to call them "movies" or "cinema," Film Guild directed itself toward tasks of even greater import: to introduce high quality films to as many people as possible. With this end in mind the members chose to reduce admission prices and to have fewer, better publicized showings. The result was a season of record attendance and monumental success.

But if it was the members' wish to make such films available, it was also their hope to prepare the community audience for each showing. Thus "Show and Tell," a weekly WNTH program featuring panel discussions and guest speakers, was aired throughout the year. These discussions presented critical analyses of Guild films, dealt with film techniques, and reviewed local and television movies.

Thinking it valuable to correlate the season's program of films with New Trier's academic curricula, Guild members decided to show Tyrone Guthrie's Oedipus Rex, Laurence Olivier's Hamlet, and Sergei Eisentein's Alexander Nevsky. When not furnishing new topics of discussion for English and Russian classes, the Guild resorted to provoking new heights of amusement from great Films 409.

EXPERIMENTAL THEATER

GEFELTNIAPPE BOARD—SEATED: Whitman, Fulton, Jaffe, Miller, Potrezebie, Blatchly, Morton. STANDING: Mr. Campbell, Estrin, Iglitzen. (Cherpak)

Started four years ago, Experimental Theatre serves two purposes: to give less experienced actors a chance to perform at New Trier, and to give more experienced upperclassmen a chance to encounter the difficult task of directing, through the medium of One-Act Plays. In both these respects, this phase of the New Trier Performing Arts Division succeeded more this year than any other year since its conception.

The first set of "One-Acts" was given on January 22 and contained four productions, three of which casted none less than seven members, one requiring over fifty people. In this way a large, large number of students gained valuable experience on the "hows and whats" of a production, and provided training for the directors in working with groups and group staging.

The second set, presented February 19, billed "Hello Out There" and "The Blind Men." Unlike the first productions, these two plays contained very small casts, and their main intent was in presenting to those involved the problem of staging a performance concerned very much with individuals, their problems and characters. Directors and casts were thus forced to deal more closely with meaning and method behind people's actions than in the earlier selections.

In these ways, both groupings succeeded by giving varied opportunity to the students involved, and audience pleasure for those who attended.

ENLARGED FOR THE SAKE OF ART

The coordination of creative writing, art, and photography produced Inklings, the fine arts magazine. Mrs. Wingler, co-sponsor of Inklings, said, "We published what is the best in a variety of writing styles and techniques." The Inklings board members received far more contributions from the school as a whole in all three fields of the magazine.

Fran Osterstrom, head of Art, commented that "Inklings has far more photography in this issue than in any previous edition of the magazine. This feature is due to an enlarged photo department." Because of this enlargement, Inklings added four more pages to the magazine. The board and sponsors had wonderful cooperation from Mrs. Crane, head of the Photography Department, and Mr. Kuennen, head of the Art Department.

An earlier distribution date was the fruit of hard labors: this innovation allowed Inklings to be used in the English classes, an idea which the sponsors had recommended.

Inklings also had the distinction of being chosen one of the finest creative arts magazines at the high school level and surpassed many college magazines.

THE HIGH NOTE OF EXPRESSION

MUSICAL EXPERIENCE SERVED AS A HOBBIE, A TEACHER AND AN UPLIFTER

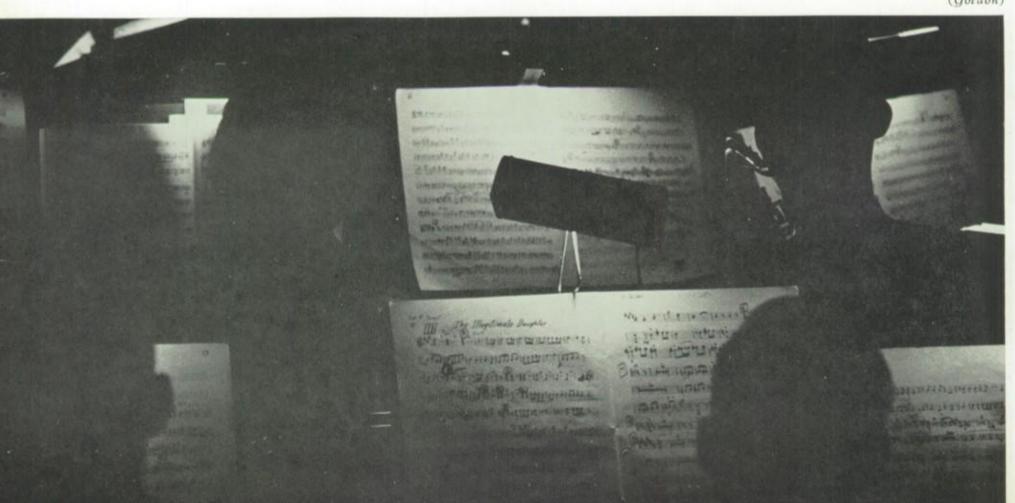

Music, being the method of expression that it is, gives both the listener and musician or vocalist satisfaction. At New Trier, students have the unique opportunity of receiving music training conveniently during the school day, with after school time used only for special rehearsals. Eighteen hundred students now take advantage of this excellent training in more than fifteen major groups and numerous other music classes. Tryouts for the more difficult groups are held in April and May at which time progress is marked among the individuals. Those students who seek music only for the satisfaction it brings them are placed in classes which meet their desires.

Major productions included the fall Performing Arts Workshop, "Of Thee I Sing," and the spring Opera, "Brigadoon." Each was successful in its own particular area of endeavor. The first is an experimental presentation, while the second is a traditional musical production.

Concerts, performed by each of the major music groups, were given throughout the year, from the Junior Ogranization's program in November to the Commencement Concert in June. At various banquets and special events during the year, groups like the Senior Boy's Ensemble sang to aid the digestion of those attending.

The gigantic Christmas and Spring music festivals again drew audiences numbering in the thousands, requiring several performances. One of the most outstanding features of these concerts was the Senior Orchestra, called by some, the best high school orchestra in Illinois.

The Senior Music Club enjoyed a year of enriching and enjoyable activity. The membership, open to upperclassmen only, was elected at tryouts at the beginning of each semester. As in the past, members performed at the monthly dinner meetings, which were presided over by sponsor Mrs. Ream, president Bob Ebersole, vice-president Julie Bischoff, and secretary Nancy Brookman. They were assisted by stage managers Wayne Berry and Paul King.

With Spring came specialty and parents' nights, and a very well-received original composition evening, at which work by Jim Unger and Dan Epstein was featured.

The members were highly entertained by a performance of an original operetta by Bob Wittebort and Ted Shoemaker, "Sid Fried," which satirized Wagnerian opera in particular and serious music in general.

The year was climaxed by the annual Commencement Concert, a truly superlative conservatory recital.

Because of the enthusiastic participation of the members and their polished performances, Mrs. Ream considered the club to have reached a high point of artistic excellence. Auditions for all freshmen and sophomores interested in joining Junior Music Club were held at the beginning of each semester. The students tried out before the board: David Badger, president; Sue Parisi, vice-president; Larry Herzberg, treasurer; and Susan Gregory, secretary. Members were selected on the basis of their musical interest and talent. During the year, every member of the club performed once before an audience at one of the monthly meetings.

Each semester the members of Junior Music Club planned one project for that semester. During the first semester the members went on a field trip to see "Oliver." The project for the second semester was to give a musical program at the Bahai Old Peoples' Home. Another important event in the second semester was the Family Night Banquet. At the dinner, planned by the Social Chairmen, Jill Anderson and Les Fuller, entertainment was provided by family acts. The officers for next year's club were announced at this final banquet.

FOLKSINGING SOCIETY

The Folk Singing Society lacked a single dynamic performer such as those who had typified the club's past, but the temporary void was quickly filled by the emergence of many new talents, among them John Kramer, Penny Bienenfeld, Kent Rosenwald, and Jim Davis. Hootenannies, held every third week, were presided over by club President Dave Alschuler, Secretary Jean Tregay, and Treasurer Roz Cohen, with caustic wit and censorship provided by the sponsor, Mr. Stevens. The meetings were lively, but often lacked the group participation necessary in making a hootenanny a complete success; a large number of the members preferred to remain spectators rather than joining in when group participation was called for. Attendance at meetings varied sharply from almost two hundred at the first meeting to about sixty regular members.

Highlight of the year was the Folk Festival; headlining the concert was the Modern Folk Quartet, along with an unusually fine performance by amateur talent selected from the greater Chicago area. Proceeds from the festival were donated to the scholarship fund of the New Trier Music Department.

ADVANCED DANCE

A chance to express ideas, develop techniques and choreograph their own dances was given to the students who were members of the eleventh period advanced dance class. These talented students also performed in several dramatic productions including "Of Thee I Sing" and "Brigadoon" in conjunction with the opera group.

Twice a week, the girls met alone to practice techniques in choreographing their own creations. In these sessions the students attempted to create a mood or relate an idea. In this way they learned to augment their grace and increase their understanding of the fine art of dance. The climax of their efforts was the dance concert given near the end of the year. The advanced group chose the music and choreographed dances which were performed by the after-school dance classes and the boys in advanced dance. The choreographers chose their aids according to their ability.

Requirements for the group are that the applicants must have been active in the after-school advanced group. This insures enthusiasm and, therefore, good performance and participation.

OPERA TAKES THE HIGH ROAD

"Brigadoon"—the famous Scottish town that appears on earth only one day in each one hundred years—appeared at New Trier this season to work its magical spell. Performed by one of the most uniformly excellent casts ever seen at New Trier—the prdouction was flawless and delighted all five audiences. The leads displayed an abundance of ability: Paul Kessler and Mark Springer as Tommy; Jen Clader and Lucy Becker as Fiona; Jamie Herman and Penny Milford as Meg; and Allen Blaker and Lee Knight as Charlie. All sang and acted well, supported by one of the finest orchestras in years and a capable group of secondary leads.

The Opera Group, singing with remarkable clarity for so large a group, once aagin demonstrated the fine work that has made New Trier operas famous. In a series of clever and exciting ballets the Advanced Dance Group served to entertain as well as develop the story-line. Of exceptional quality was the "Death Dance" as performed by Nancy Geffinger, mourning the death of her lover, Harry Beaton.

With the elaborate sets and costumes expected of New Trier Operas, the show was beautiful to see. Particularily outstanding were the plaid show curtain, and the gauze curtains used in the chase scene.

The story of Brigadoon concerns two Americans who wander into the elusive village during its one day on earth. Tommy falls in love with a local maiden, while Jeff is chased and pursued by a female whirlwind—Meg Brockie. Both men leave at the day's end, returning to New York. Tortured by his memories of Brigadoon, Tommy returns to the Scottish highlands. Upon his arrival, Brigadoon miraculously reappears and Tommy returns to his love.

Pressed for time as she is, Jean MacClaren asked the aid of the townswomen, who packed her bags with the song "Jeannie's Packin' Up" to help them through the task. (Gordon)

WRY COMMENTS

With a return to the revue-type format known in the past, Lagniappe '65 presented a fast-paced and entertaining two hours of original material. The show, "Pockets Full of Wry," revolved around its basic theme—a newspaper. The theme was stressed as little as possible, allowing greater freedom of material. However the show was successfully held together by a series of "Charlie Brown" runners, featuring Stu Cleland as Charlie, Ann LaPat as Lucy, and Kim Sherman as Pig-Pen.

Other notable performances were put in by Tom Foster as town crier, Chicket Franche as a Bavarian barmaid, and Betsy Jacobsen—a show-stopper as Miss A&P.

With entirely original lyrics and dialogue, and more original music and arrangements than ever before, the script was remarkably fresh and clever.

The acting group, led by Jeff Peterson; the chorus, under John Nemerovski; the dance group, under Annie Green and Nancy Geffinger; the specialty group under Ann Beckmann; and the orchestra, conducted by Jim Marcum and Al Pollak; all performed well in their various segments of the production and were even more effective when combined for the show's production numbers. The most spectacular of these was probably the Ziegfeld take-off involving the opening of a new A&P supermarket. Ostrich-plumed showgirls (billed as A&P vestals) greeted shoppers at the entrance while the tuxedoed Yama-Yama girls glorified Miss A&P in song and dance. Combined with Roman Slaves, giant-size products and Miss A&P herself, they produced one of Lagniappe's most spectacular first act finales.

In a show with many outstanding technical effects, most people will remember the striking lighting and smoke used in the Hell number. The many large and complicated settings were built by Technical Manager Dave Anderson.

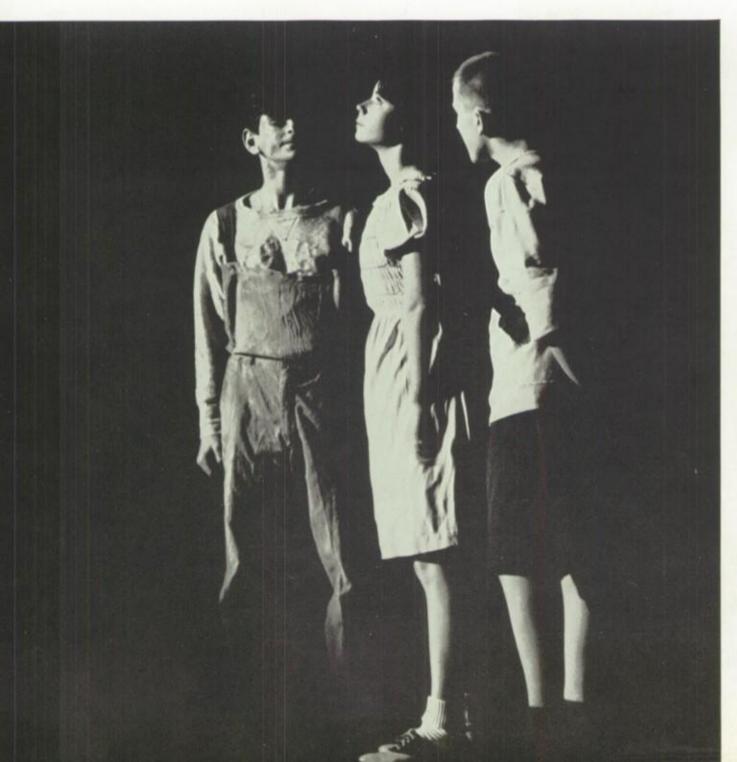

With the money brought in by its five sold-out performances, Lagniappe gave a record amount to the Tri-Ship Scholarship Fund for Senior Boys. Directors Bill Dahl, Dave Bess and Carolyn Delevitt may be proud of their financial as well as theatrical success.

DIVERSIFIED CREATIVITY

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITS, LINKED WITH NUMEROUS COURSES, ENABLED ARTISTS TO PURSUE CREATIVE GOALS

A widely diversified program of courses gave New Trier's art students the opportunity to develop every facet of their creative talents. Classes were offered in ceramics, sculpture, and painting, including a fourth-year oil painting class. Interested students were also able to take jewelry making and a Great Arts course. Students worked in an almost unlimited variety of media; besides the standard charcoal, pencil, and tempera and water color, experimentation was done in enameling, papier mache, and block printing.

The two major art shows were unusually successful. A winter exhibition of some of the teachers' works was held; students viewed with enthusiasm the contributions of Mr.

Guinan, Mr. Stenvall, Mr. Kuennan, Miss Shupe, and Mr. Peiser. For the first time in many years, every piece that was approved for display in the student art show was actually included in the show. Careful planning provided the space necessary for over six hundred and fifty exhibits. The paintings, which had a tendency to be abstract, were more representative and gay than ever before. Major prizes were awarded to Frances Osterstrom for the best landscape, to Marsha Ehrenberg for the best single figure, and to Brian Braun for the best group figure painting. Cheryl Venet received the highest honor for the best exhibit in the show.

ATHLETICS

FIRST DIVISION DESPITE . . .

Led by the first placers — the JV, Sophomores, and Frosh B — New Trier's football attack lofted every squad except Frosh A into the Suburban League's first division.

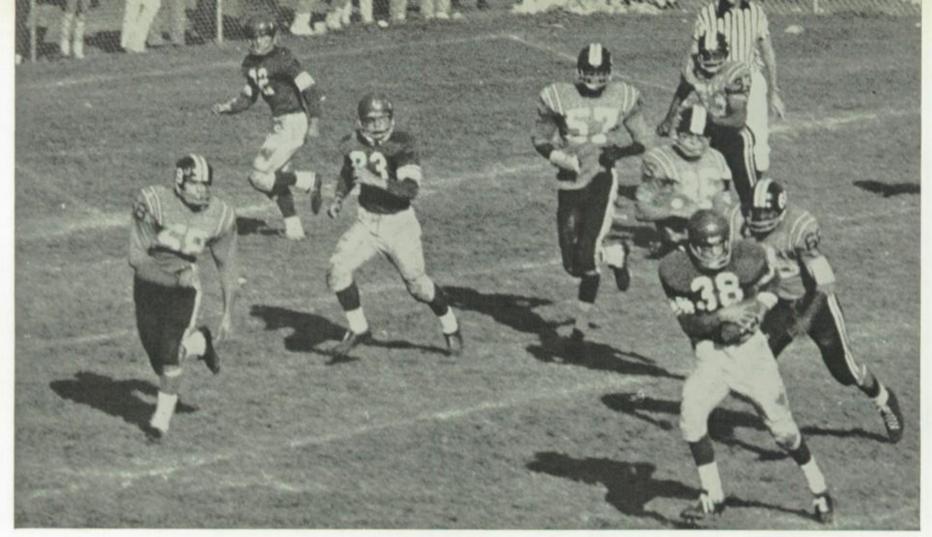

The varsity football team, plagued by inexperience in key positions, fought its way to a 4-3-0 Suburban League record, finishing behind Evanston, Highland Park, and Oak Park in the League race. Ironically, the Indians had trounced Oak Park 13-0, and came very close to upsetting both Highland Park and Evanston. Coach Walter Aschenbach considered the team to have outplayed most of its opponents, but ascribed its losses to inexperience, strategic miscalculations, and bad breaks.

With just eight returning lettermen, of whom only Bill Demmon, Grant Dahl, and Barry Cook had had extensive varsity experience, a mediocre season seemed in the offing for the Indians. But after a non-conference loss to Hinsdale, they romped over Niles and Oak Park by identical 13-0 scores, only to be halted in their winning rush by Highland Park in a bitterly fought contest. The squad bounced back to trounce Morton but, the next week, met a big determined Evanston crew which emerged victorious, 21-13. Their spirit all but broken, the Indians fell easy prey to Waukegan but rallied to defeat Proviso 25-19. In a final effort, they barely managed to hold their own and tie the GAA field hockey team, 3-3.

The Indians owned many outstanding players, among them five North Shore All-Stars. All-League Fritz Newenhuyse, co-captain and tailback, sparked the offensive squad with superb passing and frequent ground-gaining maneuvers. Co-captain Grant Dahl filled the defensive end position, and was considered by Coach Aschenbach to be one of the finest men in that position in Illinois high school football. George Mather, All-League end, was Newenhuyse's favorite passing target and accounted for four Indian touchdowns, while yet another All-Leaguer, Barry Cook, put the pressure on opposing ballcarriers as linebacker. Andy Coe at guard, Jon May at quarterback, and John McArthur at fullback turned in very respectable performances throughout the season.

Matt Lawlor and Chuck August battle the opposition for a first down in the 19-0 win over Oak park. (Gordon)

Roger Minx drives through the Highland Park line en route to score for the Ponies during 6-0 upset of the Little Giants. (Gordon)

Capitalizing on their unity, hard work, fine spirit, and excellent coaching, the Junior Varsity football team compiled a record of 6-2 and captured the Suburban League championship.

Defense was the team's forte. In the first five games the opposition was held to one score in each of the first three games and was hurt in the other two. With the exception of their only league defeat (at the hands of Evanston, who was later disqualified), the Chief's defense never allowed more than two scores per game.

The offense, while not as strong as the defense, nevertheless outscored the opposition 99-65. Ground and air attacks were used alternately but runs accounted for most of the scoring. Many players worked both offense and defense.

Senior Tom Connor served as captain and quarterback. Senior Ford Dallmeyer and juniors Alex Meloy and Bill Schopf backed Connor on both offense and defense. Coach Ron Klein and his assistant, John Galbraith, agreed that the Chiefs were perhaps the most promising JV team in many years.

The Sophomore football team copped the Suburban League championship and, as if that weren't enough, won it again.

The Ponies captured the crown the first time by romping over Evanston, 12-0, and subsequently crushing Waukegan. However, due to the discovery of an ineligible Wildkit, Evanston was forced to forfeit four victories, which let Proviso East undefeated as well as New Trier. So the Ponies took on the Pirates and trounced them in good order, 41-13.

Coach Charles Lauer noted rapid improvement in the sophomore's play from game to game. The Ponies, under Captain Dick Williamson, exhibited strength in both end sweeps and middle plays, augmented by a powerful line. Full-back Rich McFadzean and tailback Roger Minx put much of the sting into the champion's offense.

The Ponies' spectacular record aroused great expectations for the Varsity teams of 1965 and 1966.

"With Freshman," commented Coach Wellington, "surprises are the rule not the exception." And Frosh "East" Football followed the pattern. The team was small in size, lacking speed and depth. Yet in only two games were they greatly outplayed: Oak Park and Evanston. In all others, although they played with definite inexperience, they nevertheless held their own and fought decent matches.

"This group," concluded Mr. Wellington, "though in need of much training before becoming a first-in-the-league-team, nevertheless shows much hope, for the future." From both a statistical and "team-spirited" standpoint this year's Freshmen B football squad excelled over past years. The team had a record of six wins and one tie which earned it first place in the league.

The team's one weakness was its offense. Proper protection for the punters and passers needed a lot of work even at the close of the season. But these freshmen wanted to play football so much, and had such loyal support from their parents, that they still managed to outplay all opposition, losing only 18 points for the whole season.

The freshman "west" team in two years will be the Varsity squad of New Trier's West campus. In preparation for future competition, games were played with the future opponents of the Cowboys, the Mid-Suburban League. This year's 5-1-1 record was indicative of the team's spirit and skill.

The Freshman "A" team's offense was augmented by frequent successful passing. (Cherpak)

OUTDISTANCE HARRIED OPPONENTS

Winning the District championship and all but one of its dual meets, the Varsity cross-country team enjoyed a most successful season. The Harriers possessed depth, determination, and intelligence, factors which contributed to their impressive record.

Co-captain Ted Ferris, who won the Suburban League individual title, and junior Mike Collins, who placed second in the District meet, won most consistantly for the Harriers. But the team did not lack other outstanding runners. Co-captain Chris Blatchford, sophomore Ted Harsha, Mike Moats, Lee Wilson, John Butler and Bob Katz all contributed substantially to the team effort. The Harriers were weakened, however, by the loss, early in the season, of Bill Friedman and by the injury of John Davis. The absence of these two men was felt in the state meet, where the squad captured seventh place.

The freshman-sophomore team was, according to Coach Omohundro, the finest in recent years. Unable to participate in the Suburban League meet, the squad was nevertheless named co-champion in view of its 6-1 league record. Many promising runners contributed to the team's outstanding showing, among them Ted Harsha, who later ran varsity, Bob Moats, Dan Hurlbutt, Phil Toubus, Barry Phillips, and freshman Greg Collins. The excellence of the squad as a whole justifies expectations of an exceptionally strong varsity in the future.

Harriers lead the pack around their home course at Skokie Playfield. (Shoemaker)

COMPETITION DETHRONES WARRIORS

For the first time in four years, the Varsity soccer team failed to capture the Referees' Trophy, the informal state title. The Warriors accumulated a record of nine wins, four losses, and one tie. Although their performance compares unfavorably with the preceding three teams', Coach Peter Pereira considered this year's squad to be in no way inferior to its predecessors. He blamed the Warriors' losses primarily on the pressure of increased, much-improved competition.

The injury of Tom O'Brien early in the season severely weakened the Warriors' offensive capability. They possessed three other lettermen, however, and a dependable high scorer in co-captain Tom Watson. The rest of the squad was relatively inexperienced in varsity play. In the St. Mel Tournament their 1-0 win over St. Joseph advanced the Warriors to the finals, where a determined St. Mel's blocked their way to the Tournament title by a 2-0 shutout.

The Warriors' main strength lay in defense, with an average of only one goal per game allowed to leak through.

Co-captain Pete Oppenheimer, Jim Cloud, and Jim Friedman contributed greatly to the Varsity's overall effectiveness. The Warriors, while perhaps not state championship quality, performed exceptionally well against heavy competition.

The Junior Varsity, while not enjoying a particularly satisfying season statistically, earned considerable praise from its coaches. The team maintained what was described by Coach Allen as "outstanding spirit." He also felt that the team would be a major contender for the 1965 state championship. By the end of the season, the entire varsity second line was composed of players originally on the Junior Varsity.

The Freshman-Sophomore soccer team displayed, according to Coach Hirsch, "Marked improvement over past years." By the end of the season all the team members exhibited sufficient ability to engender high expectations for next year's varsity and JV squads.

UP TO ELITEHOOD

For the first time since 1956, New Trier's varsity basketball squad advanced to the first round of the state finals, the "sweet sixteen." Coach John Schneiter's Indians played one of the finest seasons of basketball ever seen at New Trier, compiling a record of twenty-two victories to only six defeats, and winning the Niles West Regionals and the Arlington Sectional after capturing second place in the Suburban League.

The team presented a dazzling proficiency on both offense and defense. Indeed, the cagers often appeared to be that ideal team — fast, high scoring, and strong offensively and defensively — which gives high school basketball its real excitement. The heartbreaking 69-52 loss to Marshall, which eliminated the Indians from competition in the state tournament, was largely the result of lack of preparation for the Chicago Public League champs' press.

The Indians boasted several outstanding individuals. Don Rindfleisch led the squad in League scoring. Dave Major and John Holmes proved extremely effective, and gave the team much of its sting, while Terry Barton specialized in ball-handling. Larry Rosensweig turned in several outstanding performances at center, and Skip Spanjer proved able at that position, also. Juniors Rosensweig, Holmes, Bill Berkenfield, and Tom Anderson form a well-coordinated nucleus around which to build next year's team. Coach Schneiter emphasized the importance of team play in this year's performance, and noted that individual achievements rested on the Indians' teamwork.

In short, the Indians fielded a very strong team which surpassed all expectations to become one of the finest of New Trier's basketball squads.

"A reasonably successful season," was Coach Robert Parker's description of the Junior Varsity's performance. The JVs racked up a Suburban League record of six wins to five losses, with an over-all tally of 9-5. The season was a little better than the record might indicate. At least three of the five losses were close games all the way.

At the start of the season, the one major weak point was the team's lack of experience. But great improvement characterized the entire season. The team's strength lay in good spirit, hard work, and loyalty. Four of the nine regular players on the JV team showed promise and could end up on the varsity squad with much hard work. Dave Newton, Dave Handler, Russ Berngard, and Mitch Klein did the most amount of playing during the season and have the best chance of making the varsity team next year. Newton's rebounding and Berngard's defense and floor play were pleasing points in the rather average season.

The Sophomore team, with a 41% shooting average for the starting five, fought to a 12-6 season record and placed in the first division of the Suburban League. The Ponies won six of their first seven games, losing to Oak Park 47-46, but this was only the first of four heartbreaking one point losses. Three of these games were with the top three teams in the league. Coach William Fly stated that he was proud of his team's efforts and expects a great deal of them in their varsity year. The top varsity prospect on the squad this year was Tom Bieneman who had 234 points and a 46% shooting record. Bob Bowes followed him with a total of 135 points. The other boys with outstanding point scores were Wally King, Robin May, and Tom Major. Mr. Fly also said that the boys worked exceptionally well under pressure and worked the ball around quickly for the best shot. Another asset was the team's strong rebounding ability, the lack of which cost the team a great number of games last year. This strength and shooting ability gave the Ponies one of their greatest seasons.

The Frosh East A team enjoyed a successful season with a 11-3 record, while the B team looked equally as good with a 9-3 record. According to Coach Severns, it was hard to distinguish the difference between the two teams because they both played so well.

The Frosh West Frosh played both A and B teams from the Mid-Suburban League. They were a small team, and suffered from a lack of experience. However, Coach Galbraith pointed out, they were workers and always hustled.

NUMBER 15

The 1965 varsity swimming team certainly rates as one of the finest in New Trier's history. The Green Wave completed its second straight undefeated season, compiling a record of sixteen dual meet victories, and victories in the Dolphin Relays, the Indian Relays, and the State Meet. The state championship was the fifteenth for New Trier, an accomplishment which must be recognized not only as a victory over perennial rivals Evanston and Hinsdale, but also as a victory over stiff competition from such schools as Deerfield and Thornridge, which are beginning to emerge from the shadow cast by the "Big Three."

Deserving of special mention are the three varsity co-captains: Jeff Raff, Gerry Miller, and Bob Woodbury. Outstanding individual performances included a national record set by Chuck Goettsche in the 100-yard backstroke, another national record set by Goettsche, Rick Treiber, Sandy Lepater, and Ralph Todhunter in the 200-yard medley relay, and the double victories of Treiber in the 200-yard individual medley and the 400-yard freestyle at the state meet. The diving of Doug Todd was consistantly outstanding, even though he was thwarted in his attempt to win an unprecidented third state championship. Also cited for their outstanding performances througholt the year were freestylers Jeff Raff, Tom Peck, and Gerry Miller; breaststroker Scott Stokes; and Art Busse, the state champ in the 100-yard butterfly. National record performances were also turned in in three short course events. The record holders are Ralph Todhunter, the medley team of Goettsche, Lepater, Busse and Bob Howell, and the freestyle relay team of Busse, Howell, Raff, and Todhunter. Todhunter churned the 60-yard course in a time of 27.2, while the medley and freestyle teams turned in record times of 1:16.5 and 1:08.0 respectively over a 160-yard course.

The year also marks the departure of Assistant Coach Ray Essick and diving coach Dick Becker, who are leaving the team to form a new swimming organization at the New Trier West campus. If they do as fine a job at the new school as they have done in the past, one can only wait for the day when they will challenge the Green Wave for the state Championship.

The sophomore swimming team, while enjoying a "generally successful," year went undefeated and captured the Suburban League meet. In the words of Mr. Wolff, the team was "generally strong with a few standout individuals." In the Suburban League meet, only two first places were lost. Co-captain Rick Gutstadt was conference 50 and 100-yard free style champ. Herb Beck was the second diver on the state meet team. Bob Osborne was Suburban League individual medley champion while Rob Jones captured the butterfly title.

The Freshman swimming team enjoyed a typically sensational season in which they set two freshman Suburban League records and one New Trier freshman record while going undefeated. With no glaring weaknesses and with unusual depth, they captured the Freshman Invitational at Hinsdale and the Suburban League crown.

VARSITY GOOD-SOPHS GREAT

The Varsity Wrestling team, coached by Messrs. Hurley and Wellington, grappled into the Suburban League's second place berth and the district championship. The team finished with a 13-2 record, losing only to Reavis and Waukegan, who ranked second and third in the state, and completed its season with a fifth place downstate. Unfortunately, the team only qualified two wrestlers for the state meet, Don Joseph and Barry Cook. Joseph became state champion at 103 pounds with an outstanding 24-0 record, the only undefeated varsity wrestler, while Cook placed second in the 145-pound division.

The grapplers started their season with a 29-8 win over Evanston and continued undefeated in Suburban League competition except for a loss to a strong Waukegan squad. Coach Hurley expressed his pleasure at the boys' hard work and subsequent impressive achievements. Mr. Turner, coach of the Sophomore team, called it "the strongest, hardest-working team that I've ever coached. They were the most competitive, had great desire to win, and continued to improve all year." The team capped its season by winning the Suburban League Co-Championship. Although no one appeared the best wrestler, the team presented to any opponent a solid, well-balanced block. The Sophomores rolled up a record of nine wins and three defeats, plus a distinguished first place in the Hinsdale invitational quadranglar meets. Thus they earned their coach's praise.

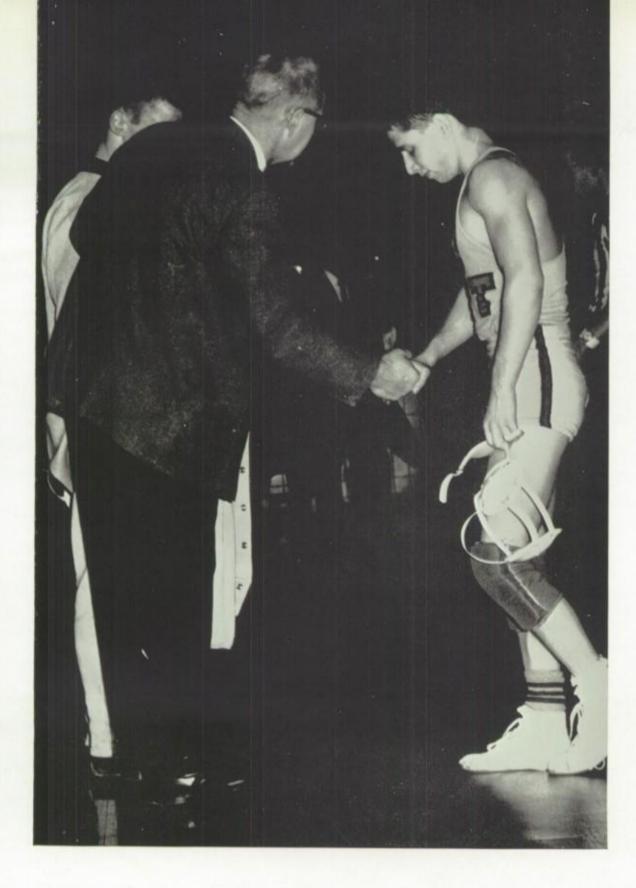

As has happened in the past, the Freshman team was inexperienced at the beginning of the season; consequently it lost its first meets. But as Coach Chicowski pointed out, "We steadily improved as the season progressed, gaining confidence through experience, and won our last five matches."

A GOOD YEAR FOR INDIVIDUALS

"Individual excellence was the main goal of this year's Varsity Gymnastics team," declared Coach Giallombardo. "But this was necessary more than in any other year because many team members were injured before the season began." Outstanding individulas such as Paul Graf and Pat Rosser on the rings, Mark Zimberoff on the high bars, and Ed Howard all-around, verified this statement. Each, disciplined by four years of training, brought his efforts to fruition, consistently pulling fourth place or better in the various meets.

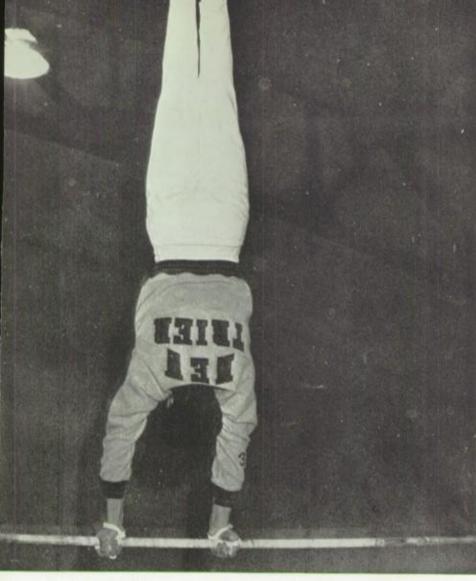

Although inconsistent at the season's start, the team's ability and stamina grew as meets went by. The rings, side horse, and high bars became main sources for high team scoring, gymnasts avoiding the more difficult all-around events in which they lacked qualified participants.

But the disabilities were too much to surmount and the team placed a poor seventeenth at the state meets. The gymnasts who had been able to overcome the lack of effective "team" play, found doing so impossible when battling teams fully prepared for all action. "But one should realize," noted Coach Giallombardo, "that despite the poor statistical showing, this year's team had more depth than has been shown in many a year. And as our all-around men return next season, the gymnastics team will be making some excellent showings."

The Frosh-Soph team placed first in the main Suburban meet on its way to a second in League competition. The team, composed of about 60 boys, was led by Teddie Howard, who worked on all-around and earned a first on the high bar, third on the parallel bars, and another first on the side horse. The team had a final record of 12 wins against 3 defeats. Mr. Schabel said that the boys have great potential and depth. Other outstanding members included Bob Goldenberg, Mike Ogden, and Jim Scully.

PITCHING AND SPIRIT NOT ENOUGH

The Varsity Baseball Team fought the weather and various injuries in an effort to reach the .500 percent mark in overall competition. But even that was denied them. The head coach, Mr. Klein, said, "Even though this year's record is not an impressive one, I must say that the attitude, hustle, and the team spirit were superior. This was definitely a group of which New Trier should be proud." The New Trier team had five wins and 10 losses with three games remaining at publication time.

The strongest point in the ball club was the excellent pitching staff, headed by seniors Steve Carlstedt and Jim Cloud. The earned run average for the entire pitching staff was approximately 1.20. This figure shows the amount of earned runs the ball team's opponents acquired, but the unearned runs and costly mistakes were the basic causes of the team's losses, three of which were dropped by one run. Another weak point was the failure of the other players to coordinate their batting with the excellent pitching.

Among the top varsity hitters, Steve Hummel, who played every position in the infield except first base, and Fred Polito led the team with .322 and .300 batting averages respectively. Another outstanding player was Dave Stepelton, a junior who missed most of the season due to an injury acquired in the first game.

The Junior Varsity won six of their first seven games in a strong attempt to reach first place in the Suburban League. The team's only loss was a one run defeat by Waukegan.

Mr. Klein expects an excellent team next year with a great number of experienced juniors.

SUCCESS IN PREPARATION

"The indoor track season is to be regarded as a preparation for the outdoor season," stated Ben Almaguer, head track coach. The season, which lasts from the Christmas vacation to the Spring recess, is largely a conditioning time. The emphasis at New Trier has always been on the more important outdoor season, which consists of multi-team meets.

Several varsity trackman turned in outstanding performances. Ted Ferris led the Indian milers, Chris Blatchford giving him spirited competition throughout the season. Mike Moats and John Davis specialized in the half mile. Jim Walton and Bill Schopf stood out in the field events by their shot-putting achievements. Fritz Newenhuyse and George Bennett ran the quarter mile, bridging the gap between sprinters and distance men. Bill Farrell and Bill Garrett were the principal sprinters. The team possessed no outstanding hurdlers. This weakness, plus deficiency in the field events which Walton and Schopf could not quite make up, proved to be the thinclads' Achilles' heel all season.

As usual, the relay teams offered New Trier rooters the greatest excitment. The personnel changed, but the two mile, mile, and half mile relays were consistently victories for New Trier, or strong second places.

Head Freshman-Sophomore coach Orville Kates pointed to a consistant record as his team's finest achievements. Indeed, the freshmen and sophomores displayed a versatility and depth unmatched in the varsity. Distance Coach Tom Dorfman pointed to Ted Harsha and Bob Moats as outstanding, but the freshman-sophomore record rests largely on team effort and depth.

ALL RUN DOWN

"It was not a notable season," said Head Coach Ben Almaguer of his varsity track team's performance. However, the cindermen racked up a series of second place finishes in the multi-team relay meets that made up the bulk of the outdoor schedule. The trackmen were consistently beaten out by Evanston, who went on to capture the state title.

The squad qualified five individuals and a relay team for the downstate trip. Bruce Beal, an outstanding sprinter, qualified in the 220-yard dash. John Davis qualified in the half mile. Three field men made the mark: Jim Walton in the shot put, Jim Schopf also in the shot put, and Skip Spanjer in the high jump. The mile relay team, composed of Fritz Newenhuyse, Bill Friedman, Mike Moats, and Davis also qualified for the state meet. The personnel of this relay team often changed, Dennis Hediger having run in it frequently.

Once downstate, however, the team's performance was disappointing. Only Schopf survived the preliminary heats. He went on to capture a sixth place — the only medal won by New Trier.

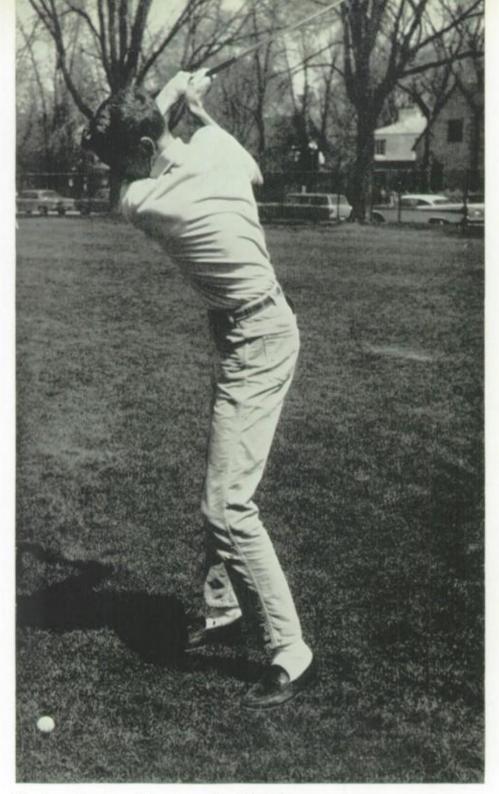

The Freshman-Sophomore team displayed depth and versatility, compiling a commendable record according to head coach Orville Kates.

- AND 7th IN THE STATE

Although plagued by inconsistancy, the Varsity golf squad experienced a fairly successful season. The golfers were hampered by the late arrival of fine spring weather, but had suffered only one league loss in five trials at the time Echoes went to press. The team had recorded a 5-2 overall mark as well as an outstanding win in the District meet and a seventh place finish at the state meet.

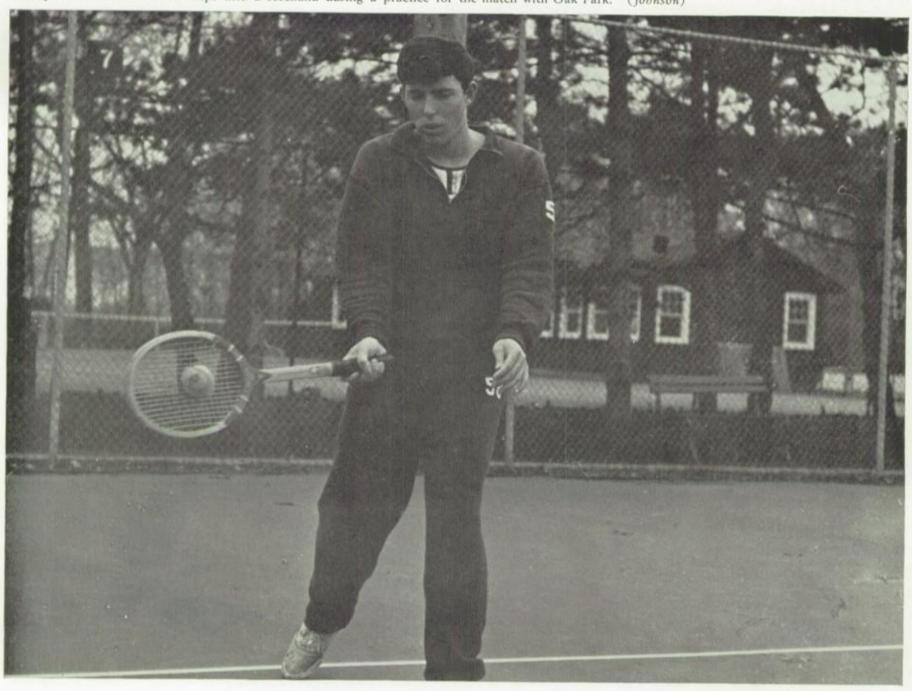

Its first three contests cancelled because of inclement weather, the golf team began it season with a loss to Glenbrook South. The squad bounced back to successive wins over Mount Prospect and Deerfield, only to finish a humiliating seventh in the Champaign Invitational, 24 shots behind the winner, Waukegan. New Trier played badly in consecutive wins over Morton and Oak Park but then shot superb golf at the district. Led by medalist Dick Briggs, who toured the course with a one over par 71, New Trier ran up a record four-man total of 296. Dave Gurley, Steve Kulp, and Bill Bronner finished second, third, and fourth respectively with 75's while Clint Gibson tied for fifth with a 77. The state meet finish proved disappointing. Briggs, the low scorer, fired 82-77, for an eighth place tie in individual competition.

Leading the squad were Briggs, Gibson and Bronner. Steve Clark, Dave Fisher, Dave Gurley, Steve Hines, Steve Kulp, John Weiss, and Jeff Welch vied for the remaining spots.

The Sopohomores, led by Norm Schmitz, were undefeated in competition as of press time.

A LOT OF RACQUET

"The 1965 New Trier Tennis Team was the finest since I have been at New Trier," said head coach Hughes Davis. Certainly their record backs this up, for the team compiled fourteen dual-meet victories, two quadrangular meet victories, two quadrangular meet victories, two quadrangular meet victories, and copped a share of the state tennis title, in addition to their third consecutive league crown. In dual meets with the toughest teams in the state, New Trier netters lost a total of only four individual matches all season, and never more than one in each meet. Jim Shoch, Chris Nielsen and Tom Rice all compiled undefeated records in dual meet competition while playing singles, as did the team of Wayne Eckerling and Steve Gritton while playing doubles.

This was the year that New Trier again recaptured the state net title, sharing that crown with Decatur MacArthur High School. New Trier qualified both of its singles and doubles teams in the district preliminaries at New Trier, sending a full complement to Champaign. Austie Sherer and Tom Rice led the team by fighting their way into the finals before going down to defeat. Co-captain Jim Schoch made his way into the quarter finals, as did co-captain Wayne Eckerling and his partner, Steve Gritton in the doubles competition. Sophomore Chris Nielsen was also a point winner in state competition.

The Frosh-Soph team, which had depth uncommon to previous teams, was again undefeated. Guided by Coach Ed Kahler, it also emerged victorious from two quadrangular and one triangular meet. The doubles teams of Bob Landman-Bud Scheuble and Andy Crawford-Howie Husum never lost a match. The outstanding singles players were Doug McLaury, Chip Clements, and Brian Hewitt.

NEW THINGS AND OLD

ALONG WITH OLD FAVORITES-HOCKEY, TENNIS, SOCCER, SWIMMING, AND OTHERS, GAA LAUNCHED A "BIKE HIKE" AND IMPORTED TENNIS STARS

With a variety of new activities, and the continuation and improvement of many successful old ones, the members of Girls Athletic Association had an opportunity to acquire skills in numerous sports. The GAA program for 1964-1965 expanded to allow for diversified interests and skills of its members, and at the same time was seeking to incorporate the plans for the New Trier West GAA with the present program.

GAA opened its fall season with an extensive program of popular fall sports. Hockey, tennis, and soccer provided a challenge for those who thrive on outdoor activities. These games also gave an opportunity to gain experience to those girls interested in officiating. Besides these outdoor fall sports, swimming and modern dance classes were also held. GAA offered girls a chance to play badminton, in which there were co-ed tournaments with Boys' IM. An activity unique this year was the fall "bike-hike" where all interested girls were given an opportunity to go for a long bicycle ride in the fall,

As winter progressed, so did GAA activities. The swimming and dance programs continued aiming for their culmination in a water ballet demonstration and the biennial dance concert. Along with these activities were numerous other winter sports: volleyball, basketball, modern gymnastics, and curling. Preparation for the dance concert began after Christmas vacation when the girls tried out for the various dance groups. The choreography and rehearsals began in the early spring.

The spring sports schedule opened with archery, softball, track and field. An attraction for all tennis enthusiasts was the tennis demonstration held in April. Several champion players presented a clinic at which various strokes, techniques, and tactics were explained.

For the first time, GAA held a playday for all interested eighth graders. From this and other activities, it can be seen that GAA had a stimulating and progressive year.

THE COMPLEAT IM

HAMPERED BY WEATHER AND INTERSCHOLASTIC SPORTS, IM PRESENTED A WELL-ROUNDED PROGRAM OF SOMETHING OLD AND SOMETHING NEW

Despite bad weather and varsity interscholastic interference, the Boys' Intramural Sports Program finished all scheduled tournaments on time. Complications were caused by the extended basketball season, lack of good weather in the fall, and the bad condition of Duke Childs Field. Nevertheless, the IM sports program succeeded admirably in reaching its goals of providing an organized afterschool sports program for all boys, regardless of athletic ability, as well as an opportunity to administer and referee this program.

"Team participation was extremely high while individual participation increased markedly over last year's. Due to an extremely capable job of refereeing, there were almost no protests this year," declared Dave Rosenthal, student director. "All this was the result of a well-coordinated and responsible board." Gene Teibloom, Head of Team Sports; Doug White, Head of Individual Sports; and Fred Manning, Head of Points and Awards, contributed substantially to IM's success.

The annual IM sponsored Senior-Faculty All-Star basketball game netted over five hundred dollars for the Tom Nisbet Scholarship Fund.

The Indian Stampede, New Trier's afternoon of madness, was again scheduled, and was to be climaxed by the second running of the seven-mile marathon run and the mammoth pushball contest, in which the Junior Hot Dogs were pitted against the Senior Animals.

The second annual Intramural Award Banquet featured speakers Alvin Dark and Jim Brosnan. The first place trophy for four-year competition was captured by Gene Teibloom. First place award winner for seniors was Dave Rosenthal; for juniors, Rick Sofka; for sophomores, Ron Sofka; for freshmen, Bruce Ponti.

"But perhaps the most rewarding experience this year was the undefeated basketball season of the IM staff, who triumphed over the New Trier dishwashers, the Swimming Team, Tri-Ship, and numerous other assorted teams. We hope to establish the IM staff's supremacy as a New Trier tradition," boasted Rosenthal.

EAST AND WEST IN 1966

TIME WAS DRAWING NEAR FOR THE BEGINNING OF A NEW CHAPTER IN THE SCHOOL'S HISTORY. WHILE PHYSICAL CONSTRUCTION OF NEW TRIER WEST PROCEEDED IN NORTHFIELD, THE REAL SCHOOL-STUDENTS, FACULTY, BOOKS, AND A HOST OF PLANS – WAS BEING BUILT "BACK EAST" IN OFFICES AND CLASSROOMS.

New Trier High School, largest in its history in 1964-65 with 4912 students and 332 teachers, prepared to become two schools in 1965-66. New Trier West, under construction in Northfield, is expected to be ready for classes in the fall of this year. Dr. A. Donn Kesselheim, principal of New Trier, was appointed principal of New Trier West. Ralph McGee will be principal of New Trier East. Department heads and faculty for New Trier West also were appointed.

1964-65 Freshmen who will move to West School next year (and become the school's graduates in 1968) already have their own adviser groups, adviser chairmen, student organizations and athletic events. A West School Parents' Association also is organized and active.

Other preparations include library-building and laying the foundations for instructional TV. In a basement room at New Trier East, books and magazines were being acquired and processed for New Trier West. In March, the Federal Communications Commission granted us permission to operate four closed-circuit instructional TV channels, one of which will link the two schools, probably by late 1966. The other channels will serve public grade schools in the New Trier district.

Still another bridge is the new Performing Arts Division, coordinating the departments of music, drama-speech, dance and theatre production at both schools. The division will attempt to coordinate schedules of plays, concerts, operas and recitals. Another function is expected to be the preparation of a curriculum for a major in performing arts.

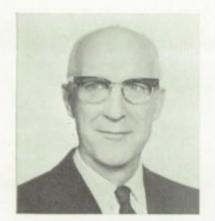

To maintain New Trier's excellence as enrollment continues to grow in two schools, district voters on February 6 raised the educational tax rate limit from $1.05 to $1.26. The additional revenue will provide more teachers, higher faculty salaries, more clerical help, books and supplies.

A record breaking 2,965 students attended Summer School 1964, which also produced two other "firsts." A new course, "Summer Seminar in Community Affairs", was offered and will be repeated this summer. And the first summer opera was produced—"Annie Get Your Gun."

In September, the Special Education department inaugurated a program for students with learning disorders. It is one of five or six such programs in the country.

As construction of the West School proceeded in North-field, the faculty's attention shifted from the creation of a second school to the development of instructional programs suitable to a two-school district. Many were caught up in the re-thinking of curricular offerings. Under Mr. Greene-baum's guidance, the Social Studies teachers discussed more flexibility in scheduling and greater scope for team teaching. Mr. Houk and Mrs. Bogart in English were investigating how better to unify a fragmented subject field. In the new Division of Performing Arts, plans were evolving under Dr. Peterman's direction for activities that would utilize student and faculty talent to the maximum. And in all departments, teachers were considering ways to make effective use of instructional television, which is expected to begin operating by September, 1966.

The current freshman class, however, was getting ready for September, 1965. Their adviser rooms were established along East-West lines, and the West students chose officers and boards for their Student Council, service and extra-curricular organizations. The first New Trier West class committee was born. Among their earliest decisions were school colors (blue and gray) and a name (the Cowboys).

Faculty and students alike were saddened by the deaths from illness of James Landers of the English department and Fred Burdine, Science. Both left behind them a continuing witness to their dedication and skill as teachers. Their impact on students privileged to study under them is the most fitting memorial to them. We miss them and shall continue to do so.

THE SOPHISTICATED AND THE SUBTLE

THEIR LAST YEAR AT NEW TRIER
THE DEMANDS, THE LEADERSHIP,
THE JOY, THE FAREWELLS

Despite pressures from all sides, the Senior Class led New Trier in extracurricular activities, academics and sports.

Representatives in intellectual ventures brought great credit to the school. The "It's Academic" delegates won the tournament with exceptionally high scores. Senior debaters had a successful year, climaxed by winning the Metropolitan Debate Union. Five of the twenty-six National Merit Finalists received scholarships.

Sportwise, Seniors also brought acclaim to the school. Our swimmers regained the state championship; and in spite of great odds, the basketball team went on to the super-sectionals.

With all these demands to be superior, the Seniors found relaxation comforting. The six casual Senior Canteens provided novel movies and wild bands for seniors and their dates; while the Christmas season dances, "Once Upon A Chrismas," and "Crystal Ball," furnished more formal entertainment.

Seniors were well-represented in drama activities. The Opera, "Brigadoon," opened new dimensions in song, dance and acting for the seniors. For the first time, the acting workshop, "Of Thee I Sing," coordinated singing and acting leads, most of whom were members of the class of '65. A great display of student directing and creativity was shown by this year's Lagniappe, "Pockets Full of Wry."

Communications was another means of student leadership by the seniors. The News, Echoes, Playback and WNTH senior staffers found these organizations good channels of expression.

Their four years at New Trier were culminated the last week of school, with the senior picnic (ECHOES day) at which many rushed, but fond farewells were uttered. Finally, the formal graduation meant the end of pressures, waiting, and the demands of New Trier. GIRLS' A D V I S E R S — FRONT: Cocroft, Zeigler, Bosshart, Studer, Morris, Wing, Childs, Cornell. Eat, drink, and be merry . . . for tomorrow you may graduate. (Cherpak)

A college is a combination of creativity, college boards, senior canteen, and one's own dreams for the future. (Cherpak)

Two prevailing senior moods: the pressures of the final year mirrored by Lee Hess (above); the relaxation after first semester reflected by John Dorfman (right).

(Cherpak)

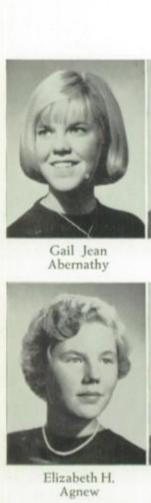

Reading about chemistry is no substitute for performing the experiment. Bob Nugent and Kell Benson gain fuller understanding of Chemical Systems in the lab. (Alschuler)

The burden of choice: John Davis analyzes the quality of an Inklings contribution. (Shoemaker)

A study in study: Senior Nancy Schmidt's diligence is unrelaxed even after college replies have been issued. (Alschuler)

UNDAUNTED BY APATHY

HIGH ASPIRATIONS, HIGH ACHIEVEMENTS – JUNIORS FLOATED THROUGH "HEAVENLY DAZE."

With increasing maturity, reassured by past success, and advancing ambition, the members of the Junior Class have achieved unity, enthusiasm, and organization; the qualities which make the class of '66 one of outstanding dependability and promise.

From the increasing size of the classes, the potential of the students becomes greater. Diverse interests and abilities account for active participation in various school functions by all the juniors. Many junior boys played on the varsity squads of all sports and indicated the spirit and skill which will comprise the championship teams of 1966. Lagniappe owes a great deal to its junior stars; and not only Lagniappe but Opera and both the fall and spring plays had juniors as leading players. It was this willingness and eagerness to enter into a variety of activities that enabled the juniors to change the somewhat apathetic attitude held by many students.

Much of this enthusiasm is to be accredited to the maturity exemplified by the officers of the class. This year's officers: President, Sue Fisher; Vice-president, Phil Krone; Secretary, Terry Pink; and Treasurer, Steve Handler, were exceptional in that they were willing to contribute maximum enthusiasm and showed an earnest desire to work for the class. They were encouraged by the promising results of the first class party. Let's Call It "Off" which was based on an Old Town theme, and were anticipating the continuation of the spirit shown in assembly the "Dad's Day Derby"—the class float.

The drive and organization that so accurately characterizes the Junior Class materialized in the culmination of hard work and fun in preparing for the very successful Junior Girls' Dance, "Heavenly Daze."

A maturity in their approach helped the Juniors to make the big change from the somewhat insignificant sophomore year to the very important junior one. Certainly the privilege of being allowed to attend the Christmas formals and organizing the prom signified individualism in their own minds; but there are other, more important privileges which elevated the status of the juniors in the eyes of the rest of the school for the first time, the members of the class of 66 stepped into positions of leadership, entailing a responsibility to the entire student body. Because of their willingness to work hard and accept responsibility, the juniors will achieve success in all the activities they undertake.

The academic demands of college and the responsibilities of being a senior combine to awaken and even frighten one at the end of his junior year. Yet, if the Class of '66 continues in the path it has begun to blaze, the maturity which now characterizes the juniors will lead them to a promising and successful future.

A searching Tom Stewart is inspired by words of wisdom from Pete Rossiter. (Alschuler)

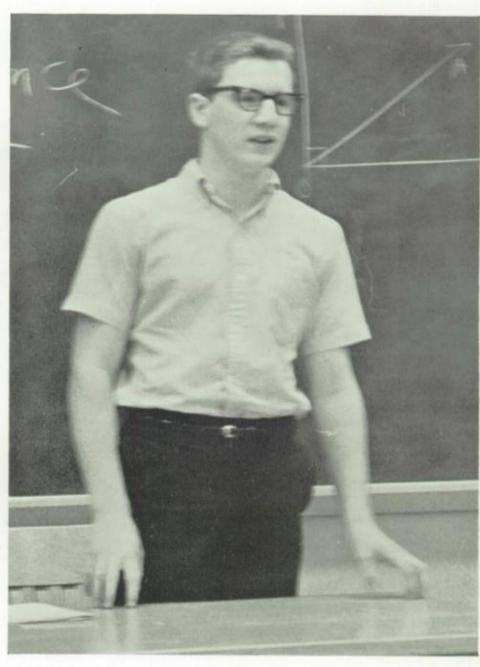

Worldly Junior Chet Coppak (above) reminisces over his "innocent" Frosh past, while Gil Sydell (left) ponders his future in that Alladin's lamp of the Lunch hall, lemonade. (Gordon)

Junior classes are not all discussion and life; often, a deep deliberation over puzzling questions was necessary. (Alschuler)

Chuck Matthei presides as chairman pro tempore at a meeting of the National Forensic League Student Congress. (Cherpak)

Taking time off from the Junior Theme and College Boards, Tom Sager sneaks a moment of relaxation in class. (Cherpak)

Steve Klee sings along with "Herman's Hermits" in the Echoes office. (Gordon)

NO NOTHING CLASS

INGENIOUS SOPHOMORE PUBLICITY PROGRAM PRODUCED PROGRESSIVE IDEAS

Unwilling to be over-shadowed by the upper classmen, the Sophomore Class showed much ingenuity in creating profitable activities. To inform the class of school functions, such as the United Fund Drive, the A.F.S. Bottle Drive, pep rallies, and sports events, the Sophomore Publicity Committee was formed. Members made posters, gave speeches, and promoted school spirit.

The parties were unique and well-planned. "Soph-Ari," was as unusual as its name. With an African theme, the entertainment was provided by a professional band, "Cave-Inn" participants danced to the music of Dave Porter's band, and enjoyed skits performed by their own class members. This party was so well carried out that parts of it were taped and later shown on WMAQ's "Dateline: Chicago," as an outstanding effort of high school students.

The new-students' banquet, held in October, was planned by the steering committee and class officers to help newcomers become an active, accepted part of the student body.

The swimming team had a very successful season, carrying on the tradition of the superior New Trier Green Wave. The football team gained the glory of being suburbanite champions by losing only one game to Hinsdale.

The class was also well represented in drama activities. Renita Kaylin plyed "Addie" in the Spring Play, The Little Foxes. Mark Miller, Ann LaPat, and Kim Sherman were outstanding in their parts in Lagniappe. Debate, council, and the publications also had many activities, and unusually inspired Sophomore members.

The class officers, Rodney Petersen, President, Peggy Fridstein, Vice-president, Holly Hill, secretary, and Joy Sollis, treasurer, led the students in both mind and body. They, along with many of their class, created a Dad"s Day float from an old car. They also acted as examples and helpers for the Freshman officers.

This year's Sophomore Class made quite a name for itself at New Trier. The members found definite places for themselves in the many organizations here, and refused to be labelled the "Nothing Class."

MULTIPLY AND DIVIDE

THE CREATION OF A NEW SCHOOL OPENED NEW VISTAS FOR FRESHMAN LEADERSHIP

The task of this year's Freshman class was to lay the foundations of a new school and still try to remain an active part of the old school. Divided into "East" and "West" groups before they even entered New Trier, the students attempted to overcome the problems created with a new school.

An initial problem was the idea of going to a new school with no upper classmen as leaders or models for the Frosh. Many students were separated from friends because of the district lines. But, because of "East" and "West" adviser rooms, they soon met many new friends. Sports teams were divided by school, though the opposing teams are not scheduled to participate against each other next year. The West officers: Maury Fisher, president; Patsy Granstrom and Kathy Kaplan, vice-presidents; Jeff Fox, treasurer; and Cathey Bonnefoi, secretary, and the steering committee had to decide if the new school would have separate Echoes, New Trier News, and Playback; and if so, how they would be arranged.

The East class was not idle by any means, Next year their class will have about nine hundred students, while the West campus will have only four or five hundred. There, the officers: Bob Myers, president; Sally Weil, vice-president; Sunny Crawford, secretary; and Tim Healy, treasurer as well as the student body, confronted the already existing problems of school overpopulation, apathy, vandalism, and dishonesty.

Of course, the class also appreciated the benefits of the school—good dramatic and musical facilities, championship debate and sports teams, and great learning advantages. "My Sister Eileen," the frosh play, was accepted with great enthusiasm and much talent was revealed. In the fall, the upperclassmen planned the mixer, "East-Side, West-Side." However, the winter party, "Chances R It's Here," planned and carried out by the steering committee was much more successful. Entertainment was provided by the Port Clinton 4, and the Gremlins, who seem to have sparkling futures.

The class realized its unique position of being the first generation of two New Triers, and showed great maturity and cooperation in all its actions.
